NEW YORK LABOR CALLS PROTEST STRIKE

REPORT 500,000 TO QUIT FOLLOWED BY DOWN TOWN MEETING

Police To Maintain Guard
—Few Show Up At
Halls

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—At least 500,000 workers were expected to lay down their tools here today in protest against the impending execution of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts.

Leaders called upon the workers to quit at 10 o'clock and proceed to thirty mass meetings. If the plans carry, leaders declare this will be the greatest demonstration of protest ever staged in New York.

At the hour appointed for the general walk-out there was no apparent interruption of industrial activity. Only police and uncertain groups of stragglers appeared at the various designated meeting places. It could not be determined whether the groups were strikers or curious spectators.

The climax of the day is expected to be reached at 4 o'clock this afternoon when a huge demonstration will be held at Union Square. There assembled, the workers will be addressed by speakers and escorted to appeal against the execution of their two comrades. Although the meetings have been permitted by police extraordinary precautions will be taken to assure order and to prevent blocking of traffic by parades. At the Union Square meeting, approximately 1,000 police will maintain order.

According to the leaders of the socialist and communist parties and the industrial workers of the world, the strike will be one of sympathy only, hence there will be no picket lines or other manifestations of a labor disturbance.

Local sympathizers of the Sacco-Vanzetti cause have also been asked by the Boston group to join the "march on Boston" and stage a demonstration there. Leaders here said that more than 1,000 had declared their intention of joining the "march." They said they would travel in buses emblazoned with signs reading: "Sacco-Vanzetti Freedom Delegation."

Among the unions and other organizations which were said to have pledged themselves to join the protest strike were:

The International Printers' Union, ship and yard workers, clothing workers, garment workers, United Hebrew trades, Journeymen Tailors' Union, Journeymen Barbers' Union, carpenters' and excavators' union, fur workers, plasterers' union, cement workers' union, Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, painters and decorators, laundry workers, metal workers, bricklayers' union, Textile Workers of America, Marine Transport Workers' Union, and Typographical Union, local No. 7.

Also the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America, Young Workers' League, International Labor Defense, National Council for the Protection of the Foreign-born, and the Workers' Health Bureau.

OLD TIME BASEBALL STAR IS MOURNED

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—New York baseball fans today mourned the passing of Billy Gilbert, old-time star of the Giants. He died at his home here at the age of fifty-two.

Gilbert played second base for the Giants when they won a pennant in 1905. The others in that infield were McGraw, Devlin and Dahlen. At the time of his death Gilbert was a scout for the New York club of the International League.

FLYERS WILL AVOID FLIGHT START 13TH

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 9.—Because Saturday is the thirteenth day of the month, it is probable that the hop-off of the Junkers flight from Germany to America will be deferred until Monday. Trial flights were taken today. Floods of gift packages for the flyers are coming in. Correspondents were barred from the flying field today in order not to interfere with the flight preparations.

MINE RE-OPENS

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 9.—The Klein and Moore mine which ceased operations last Friday when its twenty-five employees joined the United Mine workers, resumed operations today when the operators signed a tentative agreement with T. J. Price, sub-district president. The Jacksonville wage scale is to be paid pending a permanent settlement.

Final Tribute For General Wood

QUIET ELECTION DAY EXPECTED TO FEATURE
STATE-WIDE PRIMARIES BEING HELD TUESDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Primary municipal elections, involving strictly local issues of the communities in which they were being held, occupied the attention of voters in a score or more of Ohio cities, towns and villages today. There were no statewide issues at stake, and a quiet election day with a light vote being cast was forecast throughout the state.

In Columbus, candidates of the two major parties for seats on the city council were being selected, together with judges of the municipal court.

Toledo was choosing candidates for mayor, with three nominees to be chosen from a field of four.

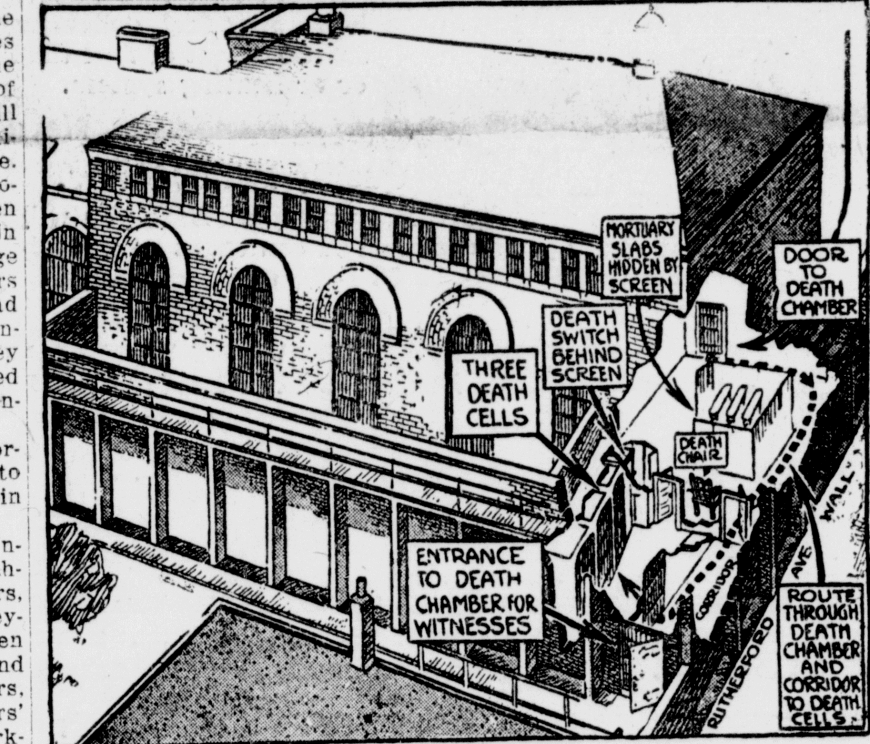

In Canton, a touch of interest was added by the attempt of C. C. Curtis, ex-mayor who was ousted by Governor Donahay, to stage a political "comeback." He is one of five seeking nomination by the Republicans, while Mayor S. M. Swarts is opposed by J. B. Parker for the Democratic honor.

Policemen were guarding the polls in Steubenville, where Dr. E. J. C. Sander, reform mayor, who took office after John Patton was ousted last year, was opposed by a field of four, including Patton, also attempting to regain his political prestige by re-election. Claims of alleged false registration resulted in the stationing of officers at the polls to enforce the election regulations.

Akron, Mansfield, Newark, Tiffin, Lorain and Alliance were among the other cities holding primaries today.

EIGHT HAWAII-BOUND PILOTS LINE UP FOR STARTING SIGNAL

Six Other Planes On Way To Take-Off Scene—Griffin Gets "Pole" Position—Planes Leave Friday

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 9.—Eight of the fourteen racing planes entered in the $25,000 Dole flight were lined up in Oakland and San Francisco today, awaiting the starting signals at noon, Friday.

Six other planes entered in the 2,400-mile contest are either en route to the bay region today, or are preparing to take off for Mills Field and Oakland airport, starting points of the flight.

Pilots already on the ground are: Augie Pedlar, and his passenger, Mildred Doran, "Flying School Ma'am."

Maj. Livingston Irwin, Oakland, who will fly alone.

Bennett Griffin, Oklahoma City.

Art Goebel, of Santa Monica, flying an Oklahoma plane.

Norman Jensen, Honolulu.

Marion A. Goddard, San Diego.

Frank Clark, Los Angeles.

Charles Frost, Los Angeles, pilot of the San Francisco Examiner plane.

Capt. Charles W. Parkhurst, of Peoria, Ill., was reported on his way westward today. The other five flyers still delinquent are completing final tests of their planes and equipment. Three flyers—Capt. James L. Griffin, Capt. V. Rogers, and George D. Covel—are in Southern California. Capt. William P. Erwin, now in Dallas, may take off for Oakland today. He will be accompanied on the flight by his wife, Connie. Mrs. Erwin and Miss Doran are the only women planning to attempt the Dole race. The final entrant, Capt. Frederick A. Giles, who is now in Detroit, may hop off for San Francisco today.

Most of the flyers selected the Oakland airport as their starting field. Only two, Irwin and Frost, have thus far favored Mills field, San Francisco. Eight picked the Oakland airport; four are undecided.

Bennett Griffin, the Oklahoma airman, was elated today over the fact that he drew the coveted No. 1 position, giving him the right to be first to leave land in the long race to Hawaii. Appropriately enough, Frost, who is credited with having one of the fastest airplanes in the race, got No. 15, position in the drawings.

KILLS POLICEMAN, WOUNDS ANOTHER

WILSON, N. C., Aug. 9.—Several hundred officers and civilians today were scouring a woody section near here for Eugene Mason, who early this morning is alleged to have shot and killed Joe Ellis, a policeman, and probably fatally wounded Luther Barnes, another officer.

The two officers were shot when they answered a call to Mason's home by his wife. Barnes, shot through the chest, said that he believed he wounded Mason with a pistol shot.

STRENGTHEN PATROL

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—The Lake Erie border patrol, maintaining a guard against liquor smuggling from Canada, will be strengthened within a few days, according to reports from the U. S. Customs office here. The new patrol at Detroit is so effective that much rum running has been diverted to this section of the lake, officers say.

MARSHALL CHARGES PETITIONERS USED MISREPRESENTATION

Father Of Justice Of
Peace Law Defends
Attacked Bill

Commenting upon the Marshall act, a bill of his own authorship, reviving justice of the peace courts in Ohio, which was prevented from going into operation Tuesday by a referendum petition bearing signatures of 115,000 voters, filed at Columbus Monday, State Senator L. T. Marshall, this city, charged the signatures were obtained in many counties by "misrepresentation on the part of those seeking the referendum."

"Automobile clubs in some counties were induced to sponsor the referendum and many of the members of these clubs will no doubt resent the misrepresentation when they learn that this law in no way affects the jurisdiction of justices of the peace relative to violation of the traffic laws," Senator Marshall declared.

"The decision of Judge Taft and this law only relates to criminal cases in which the mayor or justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, which they never had in traffic violations," he explained.

"The officers of some of the automobile clubs lobbied against the gas tax when the majority of the members favored the law and I am wondering if after a while, the members of these clubs will not resent this misrepresentation on

OFFICER IMPROVES

WARREN, O., Aug. 9.—Kenneth Freer, deputy sheriff who was struck down with an axe about two weeks ago, after a rambling raid at Trumbull Hill, today was believed to be recovering consciousness and may soon be able to name his assailant. For two weeks officers have been running down every clue, hoping to find the solution of the mysterious attack.

Bennett Griffin, the Oklahoma airman, was elated today over the fact that he drew the coveted No. 1 position, giving him the right to be first to leave land in the long race to Hawaii. Appropriately enough, Frost, who is credited with having one of the fastest airplanes in the race, got No. 15, position in the drawings.

TROTSKY STRIPPED OF POWER; EXPULSED FROM CENTRAL BODY

MOSCOW, Aug. 9.—Trotsky and Zinovieff have been expelled from the central committee of the communist party, by an overwhelming vote of the plenum, according to reliable reports today.

No official statement has been issued on the vote as yet. The final expulsion of Trotsky and Zinovieff from the central committee the stripping of power from these two men who were once high in the communist councils.

For more than a year Trotsky and Zinovieff have been leading the opposition to the present communist policies and as their opposition has continued they have been deprived of office after office.

When the plenum of the central committee went into session last week it was reported that Joseph Stalin had given warning that all those of the opposition who failed to give a pledge of allegiance to the party and its policies would be drastically dealt with. Many deserted the opposition, but Trotsky and Zinovieff held fast and now pay the penalty of expulsion.

HE IS MENTIONED

Carmel Thompson, Cleveland, who will address a joint meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs here Tuesday evening, is being prominently mentioned as a possible successor to the late Major General Leonard Wood as governor general of the Philippines. Thompson acted as personal representative of President Coolidge in a recent survey of the islands.

SAY COMMUNISTS AIDED AGITATION

PEKING, Aug. 9.—Documents in the possession of the American embassy here, captured in the raids on the Soviet embassy last April, are held to contain evidence that Sacco-Vanzetti agitation in the United States has been aided by the Communist International.

Officials pointed to a report by the "department of agitation and propaganda," which bears evidence on pages 115, and 173 that the "Workers' party has conducted a propaganda campaign for a united front of activity in behalf of the relief of Sacco and Vanzetti."

HALTS JAIL BREAK

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 9.—Acting on a "tip" given him by a prisoner, Sheriff Peter J. Corli today exposed a plot by five other inmates of the county jail to saw their way to freedom. Six saws had been smuggled in, presumably by a man now out on bond, and one bar had already been cut away.

PROTEST MEETING

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 9.—The national organization of the Norwegian Trades Unions has organized Sacco-Vanzetti protest meetings throughout all Norway, to be held at the close of work on Wednesday.

REFUSE PROTEST

GENEVA, Aug. 9.—The Swiss Telegraph administration today refused to transmit to the United States minister at Bern a long telegram protesting against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti, which had been drawn up at a radical mass meeting, on the ground that it would be injurious to a friendly government.

HORRORS! LINDY LETS GIRL SIT IN PLANE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 9.—The wagging of tongues which starts anew every time the Prince of Wales invites a young woman to dance or dine a ride on his yacht was but a dim echo today, compared with the gossip spreading by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, bashful trans-Atlantic flyer here, in the wake of his invitation to a pretty girl to sit in the cockpit of the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The honored guest, who sat in the control seat of the famous monoplane was Miss Martha Helen Croninger, 17, said to be the only woman aviator in Cincinnati. She isn't really a full-fledged pilot yet, but is a student aviator, and already has done some solo piloting. She was introduced to Lindbergh at Lunken airport just prior to his take-off for Louisville, Ky., yesterday, and Lindy surprised even his closest associates when he invited her to inspect the controls of his ship from the pilot's place.

Lindbergh's take-off was a slightly delayed when it was discovered that a souvenir hunter had whittled a four-inch square section from the stabilizer of the "Spirit of St. Louis," but repairs were made quickly.

FIGHTER ACCORDED MILITARY RITES AT FUNERAL SERVICES

Army Generals Lay Comrade To Rest In Arlington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Back to the scene of his greatest triumphs was borne today the body of Major General Leonard Wood, for a final resting place in Arlington National Cemetery, among the nation's warrior dead.

It was in Washington that Wood, once an obscure surgeon in the army, rose to chief of staff, the highest post in the military establishment.

The funeral which honored his forty-two years service as soldier and colonial administrator was one of the most impressive military ceremonies here in recent years. Despite overcast skies, thousands of Washingtonians paid silent tribute along the fifteen mile procession route between Union Station Plaza and the burial ground. Ranking generals of the army officiated as pallbearers. Public officials of every rank participated in the ceremony. Flugs were flown at half staff on all public buildings.

General Wood's body arrived at 7:25 o'clock this morning from Boston, where he died early Sunday morning following a cranial operation. He was 67 years old and had returned from the Philippine Islands three months ago on his first leave of absence since he assumed the governor-generalship under President Harding in 1921.

Mrs. Wood and a guard of honor composed of six troopers accompanied the bier from Boston. Upon its arrival the general's body, borne by six soldiers, was carried slowly behind two ranks of troops from the train to the president's room in the station, there to lie in state for a brief time while the funeral cortege formed outside. The casket, draped by an American flag, was not opened. The funeral escort was ordered to move at nine o'clock for the last, slow march to the cemetery. Wood's grave is among his comrades of the "Rough Riders" regiment.

Mrs. Wood, her two sons, Osborne Wood and Leonard Wood, Jr. and her daughter, Miss Louise B. Wood, sat for a short time by the casket in the president's room. None but military officers and relatives was allowed to enter with them. Mrs. Wood appeared pale and worn, but bore up well.

After the funeral Mrs. Wood plans to go to Baltimore for a rest. Rain began to fall as the procession left the station.

The military escort of almost a thousand men, including units from Fort Myer and Fort Humphreys, Virginia, was headed by the army band and commanded by Major General Hanson E. Ely, commander of the army war college. Behind the flag-draped caisson, a riderless horse, with saddle turned backwards—the traditional emblem of military mourning—moved in the slow cortege.

The procession moved from the station plaza to the capital grounds west on Pennsylvania Avenue to the Washington monument grounds past the White House and the great marble shaft of the 1st division monument in the rear of the state department, and thence over the Potomac to the cemetery.

Colonel John T. Axon, chief of the chaplains of the army, and Chaplain W. H. Watts were appointed to officiate at the burial ground.

JUDGE DENIES STAY AND REVOCATION OF SENTENCE FOR PAIR

Riot Squads With Machine Guns Held In Readiness
—Defense Appeals To Borah, Lindbergh, Jané
Addams—Will Again Seek Courts

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 9.—(Bulletin)—Judge Webster Thayer today denied a motion for a stay of execution and revocation of sentence for the condemned radicals, Sacco and Vanzetti. His decision was received by special messenger from his home in Worcester and marks the latest defeat of the last minute efforts of defense counsel to save the alleged murderers.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Police redoubled their precautions today as the executioner was reported leaving Sing Sing prison for this city to test the electric chair for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti; as a general strike of Boston workers was called in a last minute protest; as trial Judge Webster Thayer's decision on a stay and revocation of sentence was enroute by messengers from his Worcester home to Dedham courthouse, and as defense lawyers held a council in preparation for a quick rush to the United States courts.

Riot squads from the twenty-one police stations were assembled at police headquarters, with three men in each squad manning sub-machine guns capable of firing 1500 bullets a minute. The riot squad of 400 and more men was ready for instant call to aid the 2,000 policemen engaged in "twenty-four hour duty" at the various stations.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—As Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti approached one day nearer their doom, developments in the world-famous case came rapidly today.

Judge Webster Thayer, who had denied the men a new trial, had penned his decision on the motions for a revocation and stay of sentence.

Police in the Roxbury district discovered a circular calling for a workers' general strike in protest against the executions of the prisoners, who are under respite until midnight Wednesday.

Telegraphic requests were sent by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee to United States Senator William E. Borah, United States Senator Robert M. La Follette and Miss Jane Addams to hasten to President Coolidge at Rapid City, S. D. to wait as a delegation on the chief executive in order to lay before him "evidence in the department of justice files" of the federal government's alleged connection with the case as well as to urge him to follow President Wilson's precedent in the famous Mooney case by making a federal inquiry.

The defense committee also telegraphed Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, asking him to appeal to the president to appoint a commission of inquiry.

Washington Street tunnel was searched for a man carrying a bundle. He had fled when observed trying to enter the kiosk at State Street. Western Massachusetts police were searching for the owner of thirty-five pounds of dynamite found hidden in a culvert near the Pittsfield house of Justice Crosby of the State Supreme Court, which body decided against a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Defense Attorney Arthur D. Hill and his six legal aids were prepared to appeal to the federal district court or the United States Supreme Court when all avenues are exhausted in the state courts. Governor Alvan T. Fuller's decision on another respite for Sacco and Vanzetti is withheld pending court proceedings and may not be made until the eve of the executions.

The general strike call was on white paper with red type and was signed "Sacco-Vanzetti Strike Committee." It read: "Strike for freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti. The last day strike begins at noon Tuesday. Only the workers' protest can save us. Come to the following halls and be assigned for picket duty." A list of halls used by various unions was printed. All police stations, where police are on twenty-four hour duty, were notified.

The defense committee appealed to Senator Borah as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. The message stated that "Sacco and Vanzetti have become international symbols of American justice, and god will toward the United States will be profoundly impaired in Europe and America if these men are executed while the United States government has evidence in its possession bearing on their innocence. We are appealing to you, as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, as well as to William E. Borah, humanitarian, W. E. B. Dubois, federal investigation officer, department of justice files will bring the two radicals their freedom."

From the bench in Superior Court at Dedham, where he heard motions for a new trial and a revocation and stay of execution, Judge Thayer broke his silence of seven years to defend himself publicly from the charges of prejudice and unfairness. It was the first opportunity he had to speak, he said, as the only way a judge can speak publicly is from the bench. "I have always insisted that every defendant, whatever his race or religion, whether he was conservative or radical, native born or alien, is always entitled to a fair trial," he said.

"With reference to the question of prejudice he said: 'There is not now and never was at any time.'

After denying the new trial motion, he noted exceptions, but said he was saving all the rights both of appeal and exceptions belonging to the defense. If the court has no jurisdiction the exceptions will be of no avail. Judge Thayer consulted precedent at length while writing his decision during the night.

While the judge's decision was being given out at Dedham and while developments were coming thick and fast elsewhere, police were establishing a "deadline" about state's prison in Charlestown and Sacco was entering the twenty-fourth day of his hunger strike.

IRISH LABOR PARTY PROTESTS ACTION

DUBLIN, Aug. 9.—The Irish Labor party and the Irish Trade Union congress today sent a cablegram to President Coolidge asking executive clemency in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti. The message follows:

"Irish labor joins in other countries urging clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti."

The Workers Party of Ireland adopted a resolution protesting against the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences.

AUTO LEAVES PIKE

Three occupants of a touring car escaped with minor scratches and bruises when the auto skidded on the wet surface of the Jamestown Pike four miles east of Xenia, left the road and overturned at the foot of a twelve-foot embankment at 12 o'clock Sunday night.

The machine was being driven toward Xenia by Stanley Nichols, Wilmington Pike, owner of the car, and was also occupied by Marion Canaday, Hill St., and Ray G. McCoy, Home Ave. The trio escaped serious injury although the auto was damaged.

The machine was taken to The Xenia Garage Co. for repairs.

The driver lost control of the machine in rounding a sharp curve in the pike, the machine skidding to the left side and dropping over the embankment.

NEW U. S. STEEL COAL EXECUTIVE

name was changed to the United States Fuel Company.

In that capacity he continued until now, with offices in Danville. He has just gone to Pittsburgh to fill the vacancy left by the death of the president of all the United States Steel mining properties.

Tom Moses came home from Pittsburgh the day after his election was announced. At the Danville station a crowd of 200 old friends—miners, most of them—greeted him. To them Tom Moses, in his shirt sleeves, smoking an old briar pipe over a shining desk in a luxurious office, was as close as the least of their brethren. They felt free always to tell him their troubles. They felt free now to show him they were proud of his greatest step of all.

CLEVELAND HAS HUGE HOMICIDE RATE FOR AMERICAN CITIES

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—Tribute to the workman for his part in giving Cleveland its billion-dollar place in industry will be paid by city officials, employers, fellow workmen and the world at large on a special "Service Day" at the Ohio-Cleveland Industrial Exposition here August 6 to 28th.

Cleveland mills and factories now are being combed for veteran employees, who longest have served continuously and faithfully in their trades or occupations. Those who lead are to be brought to the exposition as guests of the management and formally presented with medals at a special ceremony.

Recognition of the vast undertaking involved in erection of Cleveland's Union Terminal station is planned by the show management in a "Terminal Day." The great project is moving toward completion and the exposition aims to call attention to this $60,000,000 project in a national way.

make fun of him—studying as if he were a schoolboy. But Tom Moses stuck.

"My greatest trouble," he confesses, "was in trying to absorb too much education at once. I wanted to learn it all the first winter."

Then a school teacher who knew of his ambition showed him a pile of brick and pointed out how futile it would be to try to carry them all at once, but how rapidly the pile dwindled if he carried a few at a time and kept it up.

He took up arithmetic. That mastered, he appealed to another teacher to help him in odd hours with his algebra. He paid, for this tutoring, 15 cents an hour. He raked and he scraped to meet expenses and keep up his lessons.

Takes Mining Course, Too

He took a correspondence school course in general mining. But he remained a coal digger until, in 1905, his loyalty and his hitherto unrecognized accomplishments, suddenly won for him a place as secretary of the state mining board of Illinois. Next he became a state mine inspector for the district, including Danville.

"I could have made more money in the mines," he recalls, "but I wanted to learn."

In 1910 Tom Moses resigned his state job to become superintendent of the Bunsen Coal Company's mine, near Westville, scene of his earlier toiling. The Bunsen Coal Company was a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel corporation. In 1914 he became general superintendent of all the Bunsen properties. The

PRESENTING

The New Queen Anne Home Heater

BEAUTIFULLY grained and finished in brown mahogany, the Queen Anne Home Heater resembles a handsome piece of period furniture. The fact that it is an above-the-floor furnace—with the capacity to heat 20% to 100% more space than other heaters—is cleverly concealed. Your home is beautified by its presence.

It operates by the same principle as does a basement furnace. It has a furnace size grate, a furnace size firepot, a furnace size combustion dome, a furnace size water pan, a furnace size ashpit, furnace size doors, etc. It holds its fire overnight like a furnace. It is of actual furnace construction, it's heavier built—tightly jointed, leak and gas tight. It economically burns any fuel, delivering more heat from the same amount of fuel than does any other heater or heating system.

BOMB EXPLODED IN LONDON SUBWAY BUT DAMAGE WAS SLIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A bomb was exploded in the Aldwych station of the London Tube (subway) today. According to the first reports there were five or six explosions. The underground railways, after an investigation, issued the following statement:

"A small tin containing some explosive material exploded in the lavatory of the Aldwych tube station at 10 o'clock. No damage was done and no one was injured. It is believed to have been the work of a practical joker."

Despite the nature of the company's statement, detectives from Scotland Yard and explosive experts took charge of the fragments of the bomb and began an effort to trace the perpetrators. The station was searched for other bombs.

The explosions took place during the morning rush hour but there was no damage and no one was injured.

Porters in the Aldwych station declare that the force of the explosion shook the building and made a deep crack in one of the walls.

Two men were observed to come from the cloakroom just prior to the explosion, making their exit to the street by the stairs rather than by the elevators which are ordinarily used.

The Aldwych station is probably one of the least used underground stations in London as it is not on a main line, but it is a station on a connecting loop. It is located on the Strand almost opposite Bush House, the huge American office building, and is near Australia House and the air ministry. A tunnel runs under the Strand to the Aldwych station and if the bombing was intended as a serious attack it may have been the plan of the perpetrators to blow up this tunnel, which would have tied up traffic on the Strand and Kingsway two of the most important traffic outlets from the city of London.

Chief Engineer F. A. Farley is expected to visit the Bryan Farm either Wednesday or Thursday to inspect the location, and if it meets with his approval preliminary work connected with establishing a hatchery at that point will be commenced immediately, it is announced.

The petitioner claims the machine was given a fair trial but was found to be worthless and shipped back June 1, 1926. BIBLE THOUGHT

ABOUNDING GLADNESS:—Make us glad according to the days wherein Thou hast afflicted us, and the years wherein we have seen evil. Psalm 90:15.

WHY TRAVEL?

Millions of people have been out on journeys this summer to "see the country." They spend a great amount of money in travel, and they may get much or little out of it.

Many of them return with few impressions except as to their own personal comfort. They are very much fretted by the annoyances of travel. If they found the beds hard in some hotels, or if trains were late, or if their automobile broke down and delayed their journey, then they complain bitterly, and most of their conversation consists of grouchy talk about poor service.

To get the most out of a travel trip, people need a certain amount of philosophy. It is about like going on a picnic. You do not expect to have as fine cooking on such a jaunt as you would have at home. But you are rewarded by the beauty of the scenery and the social companionship.

So with travel. You start out not to enjoy luxury, but to observe the wonders of nature, the development of civilization and the manners of the people. The mental stimulus should so take up the attention that any minor travel discomforts will be forgotten. Travel should be attempted for greater intelligence rather than for the pursuit of luxury. If planned and enjoyed in that spirit, it will repay its cost.

BEAUTY AND BUSINESS

As one travels about the country in Ohio and elsewhere, it is noticeable that many manufacturing concerns are taking pains to improve the exterior appearance of their properties. Many are developing lawns and shrubbery around their workshops, and taking pains to clean up their building and remove all traces of disorder.

Such beautification is good advertising. It conveys the impression that a business is prosperous and has high standards of excellence, and that impression spreads further than one might think.

The Way of the World

FROM WAY BACK

Stories in the news remind us from day to day that we are all part savage and part child. Fourteen religious fanatics shut themselves up in a chapel in a Siberian village and sing hymns while they burn to death.

In Youngstown, O., a landlord drags a dying man into the street because he thought it would "put a curse on the house" if anybody died there.

In Cleveland a man gets a divorce because his wife wouldn't give up her pet dog.

The child and the barbarian are never quite outgrown in the average man.

PAYING FOR JOY RIDES

Soon or late we must pay for our joy rides. The low price of gasoline merely calls our attention to the wasteful exploitation of a limited supply. But perhaps worry can be confined to the surface of things. There is other fuel that can be used for motors and chemists are developing it. And as for the petroleum supply there are great fields undeveloped.

AN AUTOLESS LAND

On one of the sacred islands of Japan the automobile is unknown. There are other places where motor cars are not allowed, but in few places are they totally unknown. Strange that this announcement should be made by Mrs. Elwood Haynes. Haynes, now dead, was the maker of the first automobile in America.

GETTING YOUR CALORIES?

What do you know about calories? How many do you get? How many do you need? A calorie is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade. We have to take into our system daily a great many calories to sustain life and keep us going. The human system goes all the time. Children go farther and faster than grown-ups. When you have run a motor car for a time, you stop the engine. The machine has rest. The human being stops completely only in death. We use calories asleep as well as awake.

WOMEN BETTER THAN MEN

Anyone can understand why women have sought equality with men—political, social, economic. There is no reason why they should not share with men the fruits which the world offers to those who earn them. But why are not women content with equality in important and worthwhile things? Why do they seek to be like men in those lesser qualities and bad habits which men used to possess alone?

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings

A NEXT-DOOR OPTIMIST

MY next-door neighbor sees in rain
A chance to bleach her counterpane;
And if her washing's on the line,
"Rain's good for clothes," she says, "that's fine!"

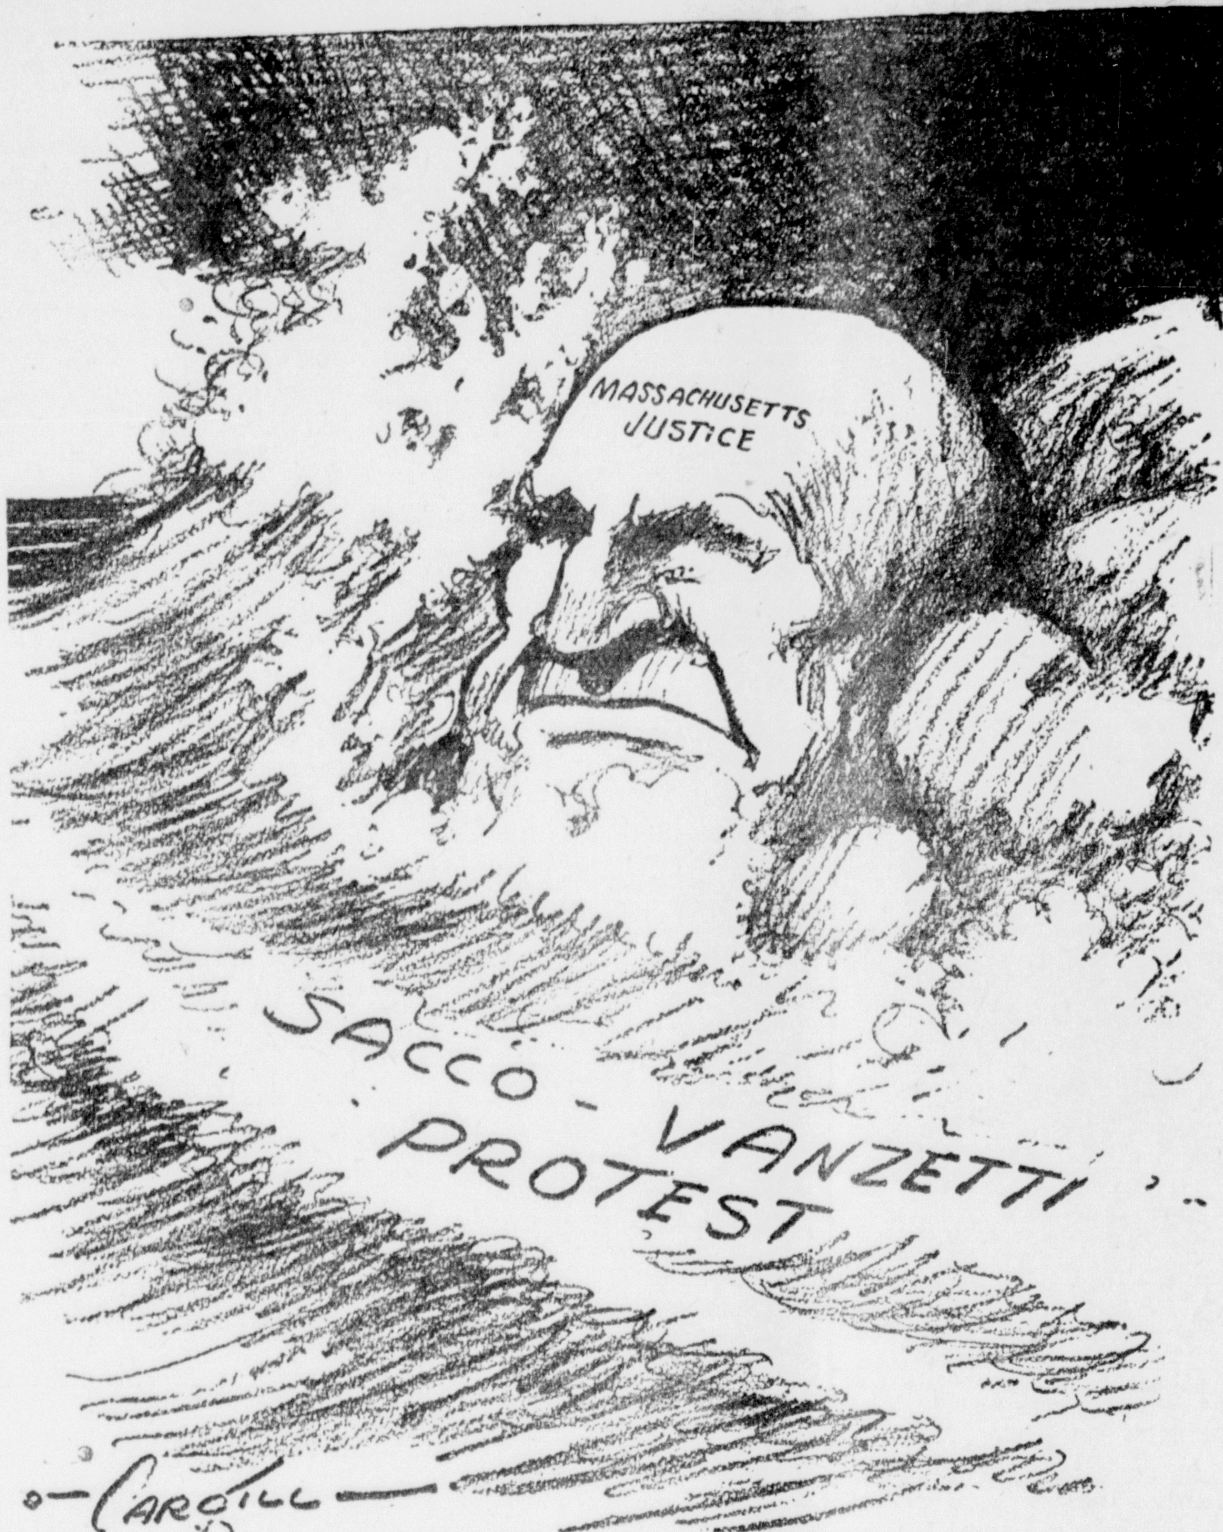

When her new sweater, laundered, shrinks,
Why, it will fit her child, she thinks,
And she can buy herself a new—
This time she'd rather have it blue.

She is a thorough optimist.
About the picnic that she missed.
"I'll go some other day," she smiles,
"Perhaps not drive so many miles."

Well, she is more advanced than I!
When schemes and plans go all awry,
When clothes, or parties, meet their doom,
I just enjoy a little gloom!

THAT STERN AND ROCK-BOUND COAST

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

NEVER WORRY ABOUT BEING FIRED

A young man hunted me up last night to tell me his troubles. The most serious of which was that he had just been fired from his job.

It so happened that just a few days ago, I had heard a story about another man who got fired. Dick Probert, former head of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, told me about the days when he worked in humble capacity on a railroad.

One of his associates was a fellow named John J. Bernet, who had taken to railroad because he was kicked out of a job in a blacksmith shop. The boss blacksmith had said to him:

"John, you're just naturally not much account. You can't even tell when the iron in the fire is the right color of red. I'm sorry, but you're fired."

The young man looked about for something else, and the first place that looked promising was a railroad switch shanty nearby. No job was available, but he hung about until he learned to telegraph. He picked it up easily and then they gave him a job in that same shanty. It wasn't long before they moved him into the eastern division of the Lake Shore railroad, where he became a train dispatcher's assistant.

One day there was trouble on the line, and Tracy W. Niles, the superintendent, took young Bernet along to do telegraphing for the party. Bernet offered so many suggestions, and expressed them in such practical terms, that the superintendent took note of him. Pretty soon Bernet was a train dispatcher, then trainmaster, assistant superintendent, and superintendent—all within a few years.

Well, to hurdle rapidly over other promotions that came to this young man, today John J. Bernet is president of the Erie railroad. Before that he was president of the Nickel Plate, after it was bought by the Van Sweringen boys.

What I'm getting at is that being fired from one's job is often a kick upstairs.

If a man is in the right place he will fit so snugly that he probably won't be fired.

If in the wrong place, he's lucky to be forced to take a fresh start.

Have you even heard of a worthwhile man, fired from a job, who wasn't later glad of it?

Diet and Health

My Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me, and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.—Lulu Hunt Peters.

HYPER AND HYPO-ACIDITY AND AUTO-INTOXICATION

Yesterday I gave you specific rules for a balanced diet. Now I'll give you a few general directions.

You should masticate your food thoroughly; eat at regular times; have some vigorous exercise to keep the muscles in tone; have fresh air night and day, and liberal doses of sunshine.

Then, if you include in your daily diet at least one pint of milk in some form (children should have one and one-half pints to one quart daily), a big serving of cooked greens, a big serving of other vegetables, a big, fresh salad, a goodly amount of fresh fruit when obtainable (canned or dried, when not), the correct amount of protein, and just sufficient of the energy foods to keep your normal weight—if you do this—you are pretty sure to have a balanced diet and will not suffer from acidosis, constipation, auto-intoxication or hyper-acidity, as far as your diet is concerned. (Use the whole grain cereals and breads for part of your energy food.)

If your diet has been one which has produced any one of these conditions, it might be a good plan to go on a milk or fruit or green vegetable diet for three or four days; and then go gradually to the normal diet. (If you are constipated or should reduce or gain, better send for our articles on these subjects. Enclose only a self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in stamps for the reducing and gaining instructions.)

Hyperacidity (hyper-over)

Hyperacidity is one of the most frequent functional disturbances of the stomach. It is most frequently due to an unbalanced diet, although it may be reflex from disorders elsewhere in the body, especially in the gall bladder, appendix and nervous system. Smoking, drinking and emotional exercises may also cause it. Many suffer from hyperacidity from excess amounts of starchy foods and sweets, excesses in tea, coffee, and salty foods, pickles and other highly spiced foods; excess fresh foods; too hot foods may also cause an excess acid formation.

It is advised if you suffer from hyperacidity to eat five or six small meals, instead of the three normal sized meals. The food may have to be pureed and very bland. (Creams and oils are well taken care of.) It may be advisable in the extreme cases to have two or three ounces of cream or cream and milk every two hours or so. One author advises these patients to have crackers or similar food with them always, and eat a little every two hours, to bind the acid.

The fruits that are acid to the taste and in the stomach—the citric fruits—may have to be omitted for a while. (Remember, while these citric fruits are acid to the taste, they are not acid in their final reactions.)

Hyperacidity should disappear when the exciting cause is removed, and you should not depend upon taking bicarbonate of soda or other alkalies for it, but should balance your diet. If you do not get relief from this, it is best to see a stomach specialist, for if it persists long enough an ulcer may result.

As in the hyperacidity cases, five or six small non-irritating meals are advised. Fats are not well cared for, so they must be taken sparingly. The acid tasting fruits, by adding a little acid to the stomach, usually are helpful.

Auto-Intoxication

Auto-intoxication is a term that is used more than it is now. It refers particularly to a condition of putrefaction of the protein foods and the absorption of its products. The germs which normally are present in the lower intestines (the intestinal flora) predominate in the putrefactive type, and changing the diet to a balanced one, first perhaps going on an exclusive milk diet (the acidophilus milk is especially recommended) for a while, and then going on to the balanced diet, such as I have outlined, will change the intestinal flora from the putrefactive to the lactic acid or beneficial type.

How to Achieve Beauty

MME. HELENA RUBENSTEIN

RELIEVING SUNBURN

The really painful summer beauty ill is sunburn, and while it comes on so quickly that often you do not realize what has happened until some time after the exposure, you must be particularly careful to give it the right treatment if you would avoid the soreness as well as the unlovely effects of peeling, tan and freckles.

If you have just come in from a day on the beach, a motor trip, tennis or just plain outdoor laziness, be sure to look in your mirror before you touch water to your face. You do not always know immediately how sunburned you are, but there is nothing quite so aggravating as water, whether your case is so slight you hardly notice it at first, or whether it is painfully evident.

At least take the precaution of cleansing your face with a good cold cream. If the burning is painful, and disfiguring, use a sunburn cream. One put up in a tube is particularly convenient. Immediate attention to fresh sunburn will not only relieve the pain, but will help a great deal to prevent the unbecoming redness and peeling or heavy tanning which follow. A good household remedy is olive oil, although it has a tendency to yellow the skin slightly. Cocoa butter is also excellent.

Sunburn and the subsequent tan are like freckles all over—a general instead of a peppered affection of the coloring cells of the skin. Sunburn is not really a burn at all, since it is due to light rather than to heat. It is really an irritation arising from over-stimulation of the cells of the skin by the actinic or chemically active rays of light. Tanning is a further manifestation of the same cellular stimulation.

So sunburn is in reality more than a discomfort, for it may cause lasting harm to your skin. For the sake of your beauty it should not be considered too lightly. The best thing is, of course, to prevent it; but if you have not done this, be sure to give it the right care to prevent the results of aging dryness and coarsening of texture.

MENU HINT

What would you do if unexpected company came and you lived miles from the store, or it happened to be the day the stores closed at noon? For the housewife who maintains an emergency shelf the situation holds no terrors. Following is a menu she might prepare from the contents of said shelf:

Cream of Pea Soup Crackers

Salmon Loaf Tomato Sauce

Baked Potatoes Buttered Beets

Graham Muffins Pickles

Canned Fruit or Ice Cream

Oatmeal Cookies

Tea

TODAY'S RECIPES

Cream of Pea Soup—One can peas, cold water, one slice onion, one-half tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, pepper, one cup evaporated milk diluted with one cup water or chicken stock, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon butter. Make a white sauce of the diluted evaporated milk, flour, butter, salt and pepper. Drain the liquid from the peas. Add sufficient water to the liquid to make one pint and return to the peas. Add the onion and sugar and boil for five minutes, then rub through a sieve. There should be two and one-half cups of pulp and white sauce. Serve immediately. Six servings.

Salmon Loaf—One can salmon, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon butter, one cup bread crumbs, two eggs, one-half cup evaporated milk diluted with one-half cup boiling water, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Remove skin and bone from salmon and flake with fork. Add lemon juice. Melt butter in the hot diluted evaporated milk and add bread crumbs and seasonings. Combine with the fish. Add well beaten eggs, shape and put into buttered baking dish. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with tomato sauce. Will serve five.

Oatmeal Cookies—One-half cup fat (half lard, half butter), one cup sugar, one egg, three tablespoons evaporated milk, six tablespoons water, one and three-fourths cups rolled oats, one and one-half cups bread flour, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup nut meats, one-half teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon all-spice. Mix and sift the flour, soda, salt and spices. Cream fat and sugar, add well beaten eggs and continue creaming for three minutes. Add the rolled oats, chopped raisins and nuts. Add sifted dry ingredients and diluted milk all at once. Combine and drop by teaspoons onto oiled tin. Bake in a 400 degree F. oven. Makes three dozen cookies.

I Have Said in My Heart

AS TOLD TO IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON

KISSES Chapter III.

Annabelle Lee, seeing that I was very much interested, talked on.

"Lip-stick and kisses are so closely mixed up together that one can hardly mention the one without the other."

"Every clever girl knows that a lip-stick is almost as good a disguise as a mask. When I go out with Jimmie, I use very little of it. Jimmie has flattered me by saying that I have a very sensitive mouth and I want him to observe its faintest curve, something that cannot be done if it is stiffened with a heavy coat of red grease."

"On the other hand when John has a date with me, I draw a perfect cupid's bow on my upper lip and accentuate the lower, until it looks as though a bee had stung it while hunting for honey there. I like John's kisses and I know that he wants a girl that he is interested in at the moment to be beautiful but dumb."

"A beautiful mouth, either natural or synthetic, is a great lure. However, a thin, sensitive mouth is much more interesting to most men who are worth while."

"The other night I knew that John was going straight from me to a girl whom I naturally hated. She was my deadly rival. So I left a semblance of that cupid's bow and bee stung mouth just back of his ear. It did its work and started a beautiful fight. The next day he told me, he wasn't going to call on my dearest enemy any more, because she was so suspicious. That is one way of choking off a rival, isn't it?"

"My dear Anne," I felt called upon to remark, "You wouldn't have me broadcast an approval of necking parties, would you?"

"Not as a usual thing, my dear, not as a usual thing. But let me ask you a question. Have you heard of any young man who does not expect a kiss—yes, even demands one—when he brings a girl home from the theatre or any other place? If he doesn't say anything to you about it, you can almost make up your mind that he has been decidedly bored with you all the evening and never intends to ask you out again."

"You won't be horrified, will you, Mrs. Gibson, if I tell you that I do not think that a kiss in itself is a great sin and I was very glad to find that at the recent National Christian Endeavor Society, which was held in Cleveland, Ohio, one of its high officials doesn't seem to think so either. This society at the end of some of its meetings, opens a question box and someone in authority answers them from the rostrum. One of these questions was—shall a girl kiss a man, and it was answered: 'It depends upon the man!'"

"I agree, Anne, with the Christian Endeavor," I told her. "It's purely a question of taste and inclination. Kissing always resolves itself into what price nothing. If a girl cares enough for a man and likes his kisses she will probably kiss him just as her brother did, whatever anyone's advice may be on the subject. I am sure that the girl of the older generation kissed her lover, but she did it discreetly, and she would have been drawn and quartered before she would tell it. A girl quickly can tell what a kiss means to a man. If it means just a kiss it's a good thing to steer away from him—let the other woman do it. If it means a kiss from her—then that's another story."

"My mother told me, Anne, that the girl who allowed a man to kiss her, never married him."

"My young friend looked at me mischievously. 'Someone told me you were a widow, Mrs. Gibson. Did you find that what your mother told you was true?'"

"No, my dear," I answered honestly.

"Good for you," said Anne. "I know you are going to tell the truth about things."

"Yes, my dear, I am going to try to, and you may put this down."

Memo—If what our mothers told us, that a man does not marry the girl he has kissed, were true—then marriages would be made in heaven and nowhere else.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

THE LAW OR THE SPIRIT

In many states the law allows a husband or wife to obtain a divorce after a certain time in case of hopeless insanity. Whether they should take advantage of the law to free themselves depends, it seems to me, entirely on circumstances. Were love dead, the woman would still be the question of loyalty. Where love still lives it would seem there would be little doubt of the course to be pursued.

Loneliness, however, is hard to bear. And when one is bereft of companionship and left with all the family responsibilities one might be tempted to find consolation in other company.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young mother with three small children. My husband is away in an asylum and has been for a year. I love my husband dearly, but there is no hope for his recovery. It's only a matter of a few weeks more, the doctors tell me."

"Into my life lately has come another man in a business and friendly way. He is wonderful to my children and has always shown great respect and honor for me. He lives near by and is my own age. Is it wrong to encourage this man when my poor man is so sick? I want to do the right thing for my children's sake. So I am asking you to help solve this problem. The man carries a great deal for me, and I would hate to lose a good friend."

What's a girl to do when her boy friend ceases to speak for no apparent reason?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been reading your column for quite a while and would like your help. I have been going with a fellow who I like very much. The other day he met a girl friend of mine and now he does not speak to me. What shall I do to get him back? Would you speak to them or would you not?"

"Forgiving Peaches"

I certainly would not waste any breath speaking to him. Peach. Any boy who would treat a girl so does not deserve any consideration. I'd try to find out what caused him to stop speaking and if the girl had anything to do with it, which seems probable under the circumstances, I'm afraid I wouldn't feel very friendly toward her either. At any rate I wouldn't cultivate her acquaintance.

Vocafilm, a newcomer in the field of talking or vocal movies, had an elaborate opening the other night. Seats sold for $11 each at the box office. The following morning the daily papers flailed the show unmercifully. That night the house was dark. This is exceptional for one reason. It is not unusual for a bad show to fall in so short time. The strangeness lies in the fact that this piece was panned by the play-reporters. In most cases plays receiving such notice have a fairly comfortable run in the theatre. Apparently people insist on going to see how bad the show really is.

A strange appetite is possessed by a dog belonging to John Mark, a Chinese laundryman on Central park west. While John went out to buy some meat for Bobby, the dog, the ungrateful mutt began to gaze at a roll of $50 in bills. By the time Bobby had gotten away with the money, the dog was staring at the customer coming in reeking with the odor of the bank. For some unknown reason he also called the police, who found a pistol in the shop. And so the unfortunate John returned to find not only $50 in the middle of his dog, but also to find himself under arrest for possessing a gun. If I had a dog like that I should sell him in portions to Sunday tourists.

The phrase "a slug of gin" (or rye, or Scotch) appears to be destined to live for a long time. Having been in use by most adults for some time, I was not surprised to hear a little boy of about five enter a drug store and ask for a "slug of root beer."

August is a dull month in town. Most of those that are not vacationing are at the races at Saratoga. The few people who remain are living in sort of suspended animation until September. Then will more night clubs blossom forth; new shows will brighten the darkened lights of the theatres; the weather will be endurable, excursionists in Europe will trickle back to an accustomed diet of native moonshine; country estates will be abandoned for apartments on Park Avenue, and—New York will be New York again.

BARLOW WINS WAY INTO SEMI-FINALS

Jack Barlow, favorite to win the annual President's Cup tournament at the Xenia Country Club, came through his second round match successfully by defeating Dr. A. B. Kester four up and three to play Monday afternoon.

The victory placed Barlow in the semi-finals with Ralph Hall, A. H. Finlay and Eber Reynolds.

Reynolds will be Barlow's semi-final round opponent with Hall paired against Finlay. The two matches will be played off this week, the survivors meeting in a final round of thirty-six holes for the president's trophy, offered by Chalmers W. Murphy, president of the club.

Barlow and Finlay are favored to defeat their opponents in the semi-finals and meet for the championship.

POSTPONE QUOIT MATCH DUE TO RAIN

The scheduled Miami Valley League quoit match between the Xenia Quoit Club and National Cash Register team of Dayton, was postponed because of rain.

Xenia now has two postponed matches to play off in addition to the regular scheduled games each Monday night, one with Dayton Eastwood and a second with the N. C. R.

Idle for two weeks, Xenia pitchers plan to keep in shape to preserve the club's record of not having lost an inter-city match in the past two months.

HUNTS TRI-COLORED TOM CAT 40 YEARS; CAN'T FIND BUYER

W. I. WHEATON AND HIS TRI-COLORED TOMCAT, WHICH OUGHT TO BE WORTH $10,000—TO SOMEBODY.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—Sympathy is sought for W. I. Wheaton who spent forty years of his life looking for a cat, found it, and now doesn't know what to do with it.

Phineas T. Barnum, circus man, practical joker, and exploiter of freaks of all sorts, was in his heyday when Wheaton's search began. Barnum, as the story is relayed to Wheaton, wanted to buy, for $10,000 cash, a cat, of the male sex, with three distinct and different colors marked in its fur. The colors could be black, white and yellow, blue, pink and green, gray, purple, blue, and red, or any other combination. That didn't matter. The important thing was that the cat must be a tom. No tabbies could qualify.

The catch is that while there are plenty of tri-colored tabbies roaming the alleys of the universe, three-way pigmented toms are as rare as gold teeth in a hen's mouth.

Began Search at Ten

Wheaton was ten years old when the tale of Mr. Barnum's $10,000 offer was first relayed to his eager ears. He made up his mind to find that cat. Following his ambition he took up the sea as a profession. Now he is first engineer on a steamship. He gets around. In Singapore and Sidney, in London and Liverpool, in Montreal and Melbourne, east and west, and north and south, W. I. Wheaton hunted the highways and the byways seeking one cat, tom, tri-colored.

He found what he wanted. A variegated feline crawled on board his ship in New York harbor one evening, weebegone, bedraggled, and female. Wheaton adopted the animal. A few weeks later she presented him with a litter of six kittens—and one of them was not.

RAIN HALTS GAME

Rain intervened to cause postponement of a scheduled double-header between the Junior Business Men and Kiwanis Club in the Class A division of the Xenia Playground League Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. An inspection of the field revealed plenty of water but an absence of much field.

Two games were to have been played, one a regularly scheduled game and the second a postponed contest.

Butchers will meet the Firemen in a Class B game Tuesday night providing the ground is in shape.

TOBACCO

Strictly
a "one purpose" tobacco
for pipes and nothing else

TOBACCOS which are made both for rolling cigarettes and for pipes are cut fine . . . you might say they are fine for cigarettes but too fine for pipes. For the finer the cut, the faster (and hotter) it burns.

Granger Tobacco, cut for pipes only, and mellowed by an old-time tobacco secret . . .

burns more slowly
lasts longer and smokes cooler

A WORD ABOUT LOADING YOUR PIPE: Instead of pouring Granger in as you would a granulated cut, put in a third of a pipeful, press it down firmly, then another third; then heaping full. Light it around the edges as well as in the middle . . . and you're all set for a long, cool smoke . . .

CARELESS EFFECTS STUDIED

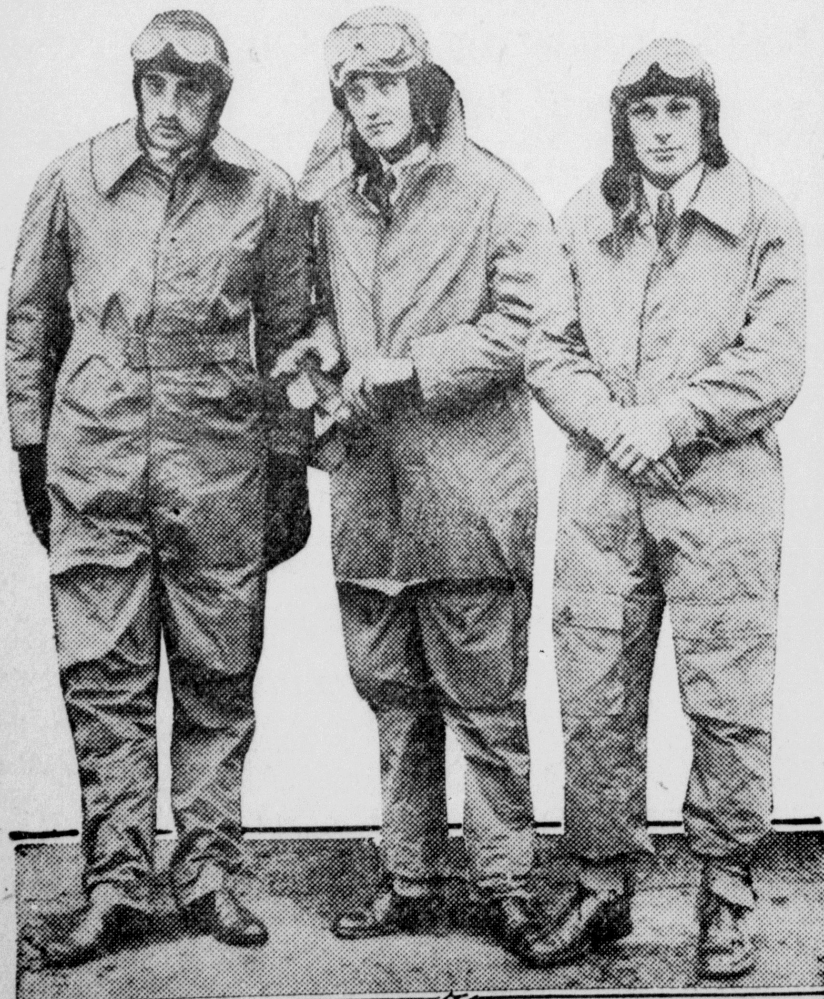

To acquire chic milady's chapeau must have an elaborately careless effect. But it is not a careless carelessness. It's studied. The small, soft, crushable type of hat easily achieves this air and is popular because of its utility. Nos. 1, 3 and 5 above are Agnes models. No. 1 is a Yale blue toque with coronet of bias folds of harmonizing Canton and Gobel blue velvet folded and crossed and stitched into flat folds in the back. No. 3 uses a crossbar incrustation of Sistine velvet on pale rose. No. 5 is a tailored cloche in claret red velvet with a panel of raspberry. Reboux modeled No. 2 of rose tinted, putty colored suede skin with a tricky bow in the back. No. 4 displays a checkerboard design of brown and beige grosgrain ribbon on a brimless dark beige velvet from Alex.

TRIPLET BOYS DEFEAT NATURE'S AVERAGE

Triplets occur only once in every 11,000 births, and have only one-sixth as much chance to survive the first year as babies born singly. Hence the Aldinger trio, William, Robert and Henry, of New York, are a phenomenon. The boys, now nearing their third birthday, are in perfect health. They averaged five pounds at birth; now they total 120.

County road indebtedness was reduced $45,142.69 to $260,800 and $6,000 in bonds was redeemed on bridges and culverts leaving a debt of $43,000.

The debt on the Court House and County Jail is $11,000, as $5,000 was wiped out during the past twelve months. The debt on the Children's Home and Infirmary remained stationary at $22,600. The special assessment road debt of $550 was wiped out and the deficiency relief acts debt, was reduced $22,700 to a mark of $83,400.

The total county school debt is $488,221.60, according to the report, as new bond issues of $7,444.51 did not offset a reduction of $29,449.51 during the year. The outstanding debt a year ago was $510,226.60.

The report does not include Xenia city's indebtedness nor that of the various villages. Figures on the village debt are not available because of delay in obtaining a report from Osborn.

SENATOR NORRIS IS WHISPERED THIRD-PARTY CANDIDATE

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Xenia Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—In a whisper about as loud as the one which hinted at the third party presidential candidacy of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, around four years ago just now, little birds are mentioning the name of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, in the same connection, today.

That the movement will develop even as formidably as in 1924—and it didn't give very satisfactory results then—it's entirely too soon to predict.

Nevertheless, it's evident that the third party idea isn't entirely dead, as it appeared to be for awhile. Possibly it's been growing on the q. t. We can tell more about that when it comes out and shows itself, if that's what it's getting ready to do.

The history of third parties in this country hasn't been such as to justify any particularly brilliant hopes for a new one's future, when it makes its appearance, but if what's going on is really part of the process of the realignment of the old parties, it may be a different thing.

That the regular Republican and Democratic labels don't mean anything any longer has been too often remarked to require repetition. Politicians deny it, of course, but they know as well as anybody else that it's true.

A conservative Republican is almost exactly the same thing as a conservative Democrat. He bears not the faintest resemblance to a liberal Republican. A liberal Republican can't be told from a liberal Democrat under a powerful microscope, but a liberal Democrat can be told from a conservative Democrat with the naked eye as far off as they can be seen.

Naturally, in all decency, there ought to be a new deal, so that a conservative voter can vote for a conservative candidate, and a liberal can vote for a liberal one, instead of voting, the conservative for a liberal and the liberal for a conservative, as like as not, due to confusion caused by meaningless party emblems.

If this thing's merely a temporary sectional manifestation, it probably won't accomplish much. If the so-called third party tendency is, in fact, an attempt on the liberals' part to flock by themselves, leaving the conservatives by themselves, too, it deserves encouragement from both sides.

In most respects the country can be divided into two fairly definite groups—that is generally speaking, neither group has any serious divergences of opinion within itself. Unfortunately this isn't true of prohibition.

Prohibition cuts crossways of everything. It's a subject concerning which Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, all, are split.

How this issue's ever going to be classified, the Lord only knows.

The Progressives' 1924 campaign, as previously remarked, was a good deal of a frost, but possibly it failed to do itself justice, from lack of leadership.

Senator La Follette was a sick man. He wasn't present at his own nominating convention, which ran itself—none too enthusiastically. In the actual fight his followers swore by him, but he wasn't in sight, to cheer them on.

Uncle George Norris has plenty of pep.

He's getting old but he's mighty hard boiled. Right off hand, it's difficult to think of anybody better adapted to wading into the very forefront of the worst kind of a cut-and-thrust scrap.

This whispering may be destined to swell yet into a sure-enough blood-thirsty yell.

New York's playhouses are dark this month—many of them—but the plays that appealed to Broadway last year and those that are still attracting their hundreds each night can be yours right here in Xenia. A really comfortable chair, a good light, the right mood and a reading version of the play will furnish you with at least two-thirds the enjoyment that the produced play would give you. Here are some that might appeal.

In this drama, Don Marquis has achieved a serious play of high rank and great poetic beauty. A thousand years ago a stranger went to Cornwall and fell in love with the beautiful wife of the Cornish king. Their story lives today in the guise of an immortal legend.

Today a young American poet visiting in Cornwall, falls in love with the wife of his host's neighbor. Their love story seems to bring to life the characters of the old legend. The superstitions of the country side lend strength to the eerie feeling that creeps over the poet and makes him believe that his beloved is one of those from the sunken land of Lyonesse.

and that the ghostly hemstom are playing their part in the drama of his life. This is a modern play with modern characters but they are surrounded by a sad, old world atmosphere which greatly brightens the sense of tragedy and doom.

produced at once to questionable fame, exults in her temporary prominence and remains thoroughly and stupidly unregenerate to the end of the play. Her trial is especially dramatic. If we are to believe Miss Watkins, Chicago is as uncivilized as some other parts of Illinois—Herrin for instance.

CHILD UNABLE TO CONSENT TO BEING KIDNAPED IS RULE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—A child of tender years is incapable of consenting to its own abduction

and, when, taken from its rightful guardian it must be deemed to have been taken without its consent, as a matter of law. This is the ruling given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner and Prosecuting Attorney John K. Sawyers, Woodfield.

In determining the meaning of the word "kidnap" as used in Ohio law, consideration must be given to the common definition of "kidnapping," which is defined as a false imprisonment, aggravated by conveying the imprisoned person to some other place, Turner said.

Where a child, over twenty-three years of age, is taken to another state, with the consent of such child but without the consent of the parents with whom such child was residing, the question whether such child is legally capable of giving such consent, is one of fact to be determined by a jury, under proper instruction by the court, from all the facts and circumstances as shown by the evidence, including the relation of the parents, the child's age, its development, actual capacity, state of mind, etc., Turner held.

THE WORLD AND ALL
BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
CLOSE-UP OF AN ARTIST

Grace G. Drayton is one of the most interesting women I've met lately. She is the woman who draws the cunning kids. Her work is familiar to everybody who reads magazines, for you can't miss her handiwork in connection with a well-known brand of soap. Even if you do skip that page in all the magazines, you'll find Grace Drayton's Dolly Dingle pictures and paper dolls in the most attractive pages for children.

I haven't the slightest idea how old this talented artist is. Although her hair is white, you might easily suppose that it was always that way. There's not a worry line or an age-telling line in her face or figure. And I was really incredulous when she told me that it is twenty-seven years since her pretty little girls first appeared in print.

There is to be an exhibit of Mrs. Drayton's art in London this fall. It will be a remarkable exhibit if it is as good as the walls of her studio in East Fifty-second St.

There must be fifty beautiful water-colors, of all sizes and shapes in Mrs. Drayton's highly individualistic style, on these walls. In the other rooms of her home, Dolly Dingle is also in evidence. There is even a wonderfully lifelike panel of the famous little mischief, in water colors, emerging from the bath. And this one, appropriately enough is on the bathroom wall.

Dolly Dingle is now going into the movies, in animated cartoons. The artist told me. And so careful is the creator of Dolly to preserve the personality of her child, that Mrs. Drayton goes over most of the work of the animators with her own hands, curving the lines exactly right and putting the inimitable expression of innocent naughtiness into the eyes.

"Dolly Dingle is naughty, of course," Mrs. Drayton told me, "but she is never destructive or evil. All children are naughty at times. If they were not, they would not be lovable. We love them for their naughtiness as well as for their goodness. And that's partly because their naughtiness is charming, and not at all sinful."

It is worth noting that Dolly Dingle inherits her most charming facial expressions from her creator.

THE WORLD AND ALL
BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
CLOSE-UP OF AN ARTIST

Grace G. Drayton is one of the most interesting women I've met lately. She is the woman who draws the cunning kids. Her work is familiar to everybody who reads magazines, for you can't miss her handiwork in connection with a well-known brand of soap. Even if you do skip that page in all the magazines, you'll find Grace Drayton's Dolly Dingle pictures and paper dolls in the most attractive pages for children.

I haven't the slightest idea how old this talented artist is. Although her hair is white, you might easily suppose that it was always that way. There's not a worry line or an age-telling line in her face or figure. And I was really incredulous when she told me that it is twenty-seven years since her pretty little girls first appeared in print.

There is to be an exhibit of Mrs. Drayton's art in London this fall. It will be a remarkable exhibit if it is as good as the walls of her studio in East Fifty-second St.

There must be fifty beautiful water-colors, of all sizes and shapes in Mrs. Drayton's highly individualistic style, on these walls. In the other rooms of her home, Dolly Dingle is also in evidence. There is even a wonderfully lifelike panel of the famous little mischief, in water colors, emerging from the bath. And this one, appropriately enough is on the bathroom wall.

Dolly Dingle is now going into the movies, in animated cartoons. The artist told me. And so careful is the creator of Dolly to preserve the personality of her child, that Mrs. Drayton goes over most of the work of the animators with her own hands, curving the lines exactly right and putting the inimitable expression of innocent naughtiness into the eyes.

"Dolly Dingle is naughty, of course," Mrs. Drayton told me, "but she is never destructive or evil. All children are naughty at times. If they were not, they would not be lovable. We love them for their naughtiness as well as for their goodness. And that's partly because their naughtiness is charming, and not at all sinful."

It is worth noting that Dolly Dingle inherits her most charming facial expressions from her creator.

Peters Adventures

OLD SOL SENDS OUT HIS MESSENGERS

Once upon a time there was a little boy called Peter who used to play out-of-doors all day long making friends with the tiny folk of the field and forest. Peter was a very unusual little boy, for he possessed the magic power of speech with all the flowers, animals, birds and insects. Peter was given this wonderful gift by The Old Oak Tree, whose life he once saved.

One day Peter was talking with never saw fields so green as those over yonder that there wasn't a splendid harvest! Every flake of snow has disappeared and there'll be no more falls this season—I shall see to that!

"The birds are coming home and singing as merrily as ever. The feathered rascals started in as soon as I woke them up this morning!"

"Frogs began their piping before I went to sleep last night!"

"Down in the swamps the Red Wings are playing tag among the Pussy Willows!"

"The Crows are holding a council in the cornfield. Wise old thieves! I know what that means—they have discovered a lot of fresh plowed earth, and they are making plans to follow the furrows and pick up the crumbs and the insects that the plow turns up!"

And when the planting comes—let the farmer watch out for his seed or the black rogues will gobble it all up, and not a thing will sprout but weeds!"

Old Sol covered his face for a moment to think, and down below on earth everybody thought it was going to rain. Old Sol had a bright idea. He chuckled, and away floated the cloud with which he had veiled his smile and down on earth the sun shone more brightly than before.

"I know what is wrong with the world," cried Old Sol. "It is spring and I am lonely. I long for the sight of gay flowers. I want to hear the busy buzzing of the bees. And it is all my own fault. I have not shone brightly enough to bring out my little friends. It has been so cold that they have not dared to venture forth from their shelter. They have been waiting for my warmth and I have not given it to them. I am ashamed of myself."

Old Sol stopped thinking and went to work. He called all his sunbeams together and sent them sliding down to earth on his slanting rays. And every little sunbeam had a message that it carried straight to a bud.

Next—"Out of Prison."

HE CALLED ALL HIS SUNBEAMS AND SENT THEM SLIDING DOWN TO EARTH.

his friend Hop Toad when he heard the sun complaining that he felt sad.

Old Sol didn't feel as jolly as he should have, and he didn't quite know what was the matter. It wasn't that he was thinking much about himself—oh, dear, no; he didn't have time for that! He was usually too busy with his day's work. Now, however, he rested a moment from his labors—and looked below him.

"Everything's as it should be," said he. "The grass is coming along as well as can be expected! The early trees are all out! Going to be a fine wheat season—" the part of certain of the officers and begin to investigate the motive of these leaders.

"Some signatures to the referendum were secured on the representation that this law would be a burden on the tax payers. Nothing could be further from the truth.

"This bill provides no salary, but requires the justice or mayor to tax and collect his fees from the judgment debtor. In other words, if the defendant is acquitted, a justice, mayor or constable, collecting his legal fee from the county, limiting however, the amount to $250 in any one month including both convictions and acquittals. Any excess of fees collected over the $250 is profit to the county and in many instances this will be the result. And, of course, when fines are taken, into consideration as well as fees the bill cannot but be profitable to the county rather than an expense to the tax payer.

"On the other hand the tax payers should know that the secretary of state has estimated the cost of this referendum to be $150,000. The tax payers are asked to put up this amount that condition may be made safer for the boot-licker.

"The whole purpose of the bill is to eliminate any temptation on the part of the justice of peace or the mayor to convict the defendant in order to get his fees and to eliminate any and all so-called commercialized courts by limiting their compensation to $250 per month.

"The bill was introduced in the Ohio Senate long before the decision of Judge Taft, with which decision we are in full accord.

"However, if this bill is defeated, justices of peace and mayors cannot set in the trial of any offenses in which they heretofore have had final jurisdiction. The people of Ohio, who are in favor of law enforcement, will favor this law.

"The organized wet interests who are objecting to law enforcement, are back of the referendum seeking to defeat the law.

"It is unfortunate that a few of the leaders of the automobile clubs of Ohio, who are opposed to the enforcement of the prohibition laws, are misleading or attempting to mislead their memberships.

"It can make no difference to the motorists if the bill stands or is defeated."

Sally's Shoulders by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for grocer Mr. PEVEY.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Pevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her expensive presents, lending her his car, etc. But Millie confesses that while she likes Nye, and that she more than likes his money and position, she really prefers DAVE DAVIDSON, a salesman whom she knew in a former place of business. She says she intends to get Davidson a position in Nye's office.

Beau and Millie give so little towards the support of the flat that Sally often borrows from her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME. Aunt Emily is going to turn her country house into a wayside inn, and wants Sally to go into business with her. But Sally, always in need of money, is afraid to risk it.

Beau gets $100 from Ted Sloan by means of two bad checks. Sally borrows the money to pay him back from Mr. Pevey. But instead of paying his debt, Beau uses the money to elope with MABEL WILL-MOT, and Sally begins paying both Ted and Mr. Pevey at the rate of $4 a week. A check for $100 comes from Mr. Jerome and Mrs. Jerome gives it to Beau and Mabel for a wedding gift. Sally hopes Beau will pay his debt, but he and Mabel buy a second-hand car.

Millie goes to the hospital for an appendicitis operation. During her illness Sally does as much of her work as she can in an effort to partly earn her salary. One Saturday noon John Nye gives her an additional check for herself and she tears it up and rushes away from the office in tears, feeling humiliated, somehow, because he knows how much she needs money.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

"Well, I thought I'd take a chance," he said.

Beau. You ought to turn into a woman preacher or something. . . . Well, come on, Mugsy, if you're going with us you'd better dry those tears and get your hat on."

For some reason best known to herself Mabel had taken to calling Mrs. Jerome "Mugsy." Every time she did it Mrs. Jerome frowned and winced, but that did not bother Mabel.

At 4 o'clock, while Sally was ironing her white blouse, Ted Sloan came running up the back stairs, taking them two steps at a time and making a great noise.

"Gosh, it's a pip of a day! Want to go for a ride in 'Cheapsides'?" he asked. That was what he called his car—"Old Cheapsides."

Sally smiled up at him as she straightened the collar of the waist before her on the board.

"I'd love to go. But you'll have to wait until I finish this blouse," she said. "And then we'll have to stop at the hospital for mother and bring her home. After that we can go."

He did not look particularly pleased. But he said "All right" and went down stairs much more slowly than he had come up.

When they got to the hospital an hour later Beau's little red car stood in the street before it. Ted, who knew a thing or two about second-hand cars, hooted when Sally showed it to him.

"It isn't worth a hundred dollars," he declared. "And I'm going up with you to Millie's room and tell her so."

But he did very little talking after he stepped into the green-walled hospital room. For the family was just before her. It was untidy, and sitting up in bed, watching them listlessly as she rubbed her nails with mother-of-pearl nail polish until they were like little mirrors. On the tiny glass-topped table beside her was the plate of food that her mother had brought to her. It was untouched.

"Don't bother to come in and see me, Ted," she sang out when she saw his red head above Sally's dark one. "But I want to talk to you, Sally."

She was like Du Barry receiving her ministers in her bed-chamber, ordering this one here and that one there.

Sally stood beside her.

"How do you feel today? Better?" "Rotten," replied Millie, almost as if she were glad to be feeling badly.

"My pep's all gone," she went on, dully. "I don't know what's the matter with me. I guess maybe the old hospital gives me the blues. How can I eat in a place like this, with people going past the door on stretchers?"

She broke off, gave Sally an intent look, and then held out a slip of paper. "The phone number was written upon it."

"That's Davy Davidson's number. Tell him I want to see him, will you?"

Sally put the paper into her shabby, gray leather purse.

"Yes, but ought you to see him when you won't see Mr. Nye?" she asked, her eyes passing over fresh-cut roses and shaggy white chrysanthemums that stood on the window sills and the dresser. She knew that John Nye had sent them.

"That's none more of my business," Millie held out her hand for the paper. "Give me back that telephone number. I'll have the nurse give him my message."

But Sally put the bag behind her back. "No, I'll call him. But it does look funny, refusing to see the man you've made up your mind to marry and then asking another man to come. I think Mother or someone in the family ought to be here when he does come, too."

"If you say another word I'll get right out of this bed!" Millie threatened angrily. "I just won't lie here and listen to you rave a minute longer—trying to tell me what to do and what not to do! You're a year younger than I am and don't forget it!"

But it was easy to forget that Millie was older, and therefore much wiser than she, supposedly, Sally told herself as she walked down the quiet, white corridors of the hospital. At times Millie acted as if she were still in her mud-pie and pinafore days.

"I'd give a lot to know what she wants to see Davidson for," she thought, riding home between her mother and Ted, all three of them very silent and subdued. Millie, on one of her bad days, was enough to subdue anybody.

Beau and Mabel seem to have a pretty good time together, don't they?" Ted asked thoughtfully when he and Sally were alone that night.

They were sitting on the back steps, side by side, looking at the row of small houses and apartment buildings in the next street. Some of the windows were lighted up and through them they could see women moving to and fro as they got supper. Delicious odors floated up to them—boiling coffee, potatoes frying, and once the rich smell of roasting cheese.

"Pretty nice—having a little home of your own. Just two people," Ted said quietly, reaching out in the darkness for Sally's small work-hardened hand. "What more could two people want than a home of their own, and a little car, and each other?"

"They could want—love," Sally answered him stonily, and she jumped up and marched straight into the house.

"Goodnight," she called, and he heard the door shut.

He shook his head. . . . He couldn't make her out. Just when he thought she was beginning to warm up to him she became cold and distant. She put the whole world between them with the closing of a door and a single word, "Goodnight."

He got up and went slowly down the stairs to his own door.

On Monday morning, bright and early, Sally was in John Nye's private office, putting it into order for the day.

She loved working in it—touching the glass and silver ink-stand, laying the pencils and pens straight in the glass tray, slipping a new blotter in the blotting pad, shaking out the leather seat-cushion.

Just as she finished with the room and was starting to leave it a sharp knock came on the door.

She opened it to find Davy Davidson standing in the outer office, his brown felt hat in his hands.

He was all in brown, and for the first time she realized that he really was extraordinarily handsome in a loud way.

"Mr. Nye here?" he asked, trying to look beyond her into the private office.

Sally shook her head. "Not yet, but I'm expecting him," she said, her face flushing a little under the deep, searching look he turned on her.

"You working for him now?" he wanted to know.

Sally nodded. "Helping out, while Millie's sick. By the way, Millie wants you to go to see her at the hospital. She's awfully blue and lonesome, lying there, day after day."

He said nothing to that. "Well, I thought Nye might be here, and I took a chance, dropping in without an appointment this way," he remarked in an off-hand way and turned to go.

But Sally stopped him.

The Theatre

Not so very many years ago, when the first motion picture fans were sitting in drab little shacks hastily put up for the showing of films, usually consisting of scenes of royalty, a parade, a train pulling in at full speed, or perhaps a balloon ascension, little did they realize that they were observing the beginning of one of the most important factors in entertainment within a few years.

And what pictures there were then! It seemed as if they had flickered, jumped and finally disappeared, leaving the audience in complete darkness!

Then, suddenly following restless sliding back and forth, the scene would settle down on the screen upside down.

Few persons believed then that within comparatively few years virtual palaces would be constructed, showing pictures that cost thousands and even millions of dollars.

All of which leads up to the remark that some of the first film companies maintain a complete record of pictures made from the very beginning. This gives an excellent record of the gradual development of screen art and its scientific development. In addition, pictures from all over the world are filmed. Especially treasured are scenes taken during the World war and other historical events.

One can easily see the great importance of such records in the ages to come.

Hope Hampton has returned from Europe, where she completed "Springtime of Love," a film done entirely in technicolor. The picture is based on the Dumas novel, "Marrriage of Convenience."

In former days Lubitsch and Pola Negri were a great artistic combination. Some of the best Pola Negri pictures came from Lubitsch's direction. Now that he is back in the Paramount fold there is considerable speculation as to what he will do. It is probable that he will direct Pola Negri in "The Life of Rachel," a character portrayal based on the life of the French actress.

NEW YORK LABOR CALLS PROTEST STRIKE

REPORT 500,000 TO QUIT FOLLOWED BY DOWN TOWN MEETING

Police To Maintain Guard
—Few Show Up At
Halls

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—At least 500,000 workers were expected to lay down their tools here today in protest against the impending execution of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts.

Leaders called upon the workers to quit at 10 o'clock and proceed to thirty mass meetings. If the plans carry, leaders declare this will be the greatest demonstration of protest ever staged in New York.

At the hour appointed for the general walk-out there was no apparent interruption of industrial activity. Only police and certain groups of stragglers appeared at the various designated meeting places. It could not be determined whether the groups were strikers or curious spectators.

The climax of the day is expected to be reached at 4 o'clock this afternoon when a huge demonstration will be held at Union Square. There assembled, the workers will be addressed by speakers and exhorted to appeal against the execution of their two comrades. Although the meetings have been permitted by police, extraordinary precautions will be taken to assure order and to prevent blocking of traffic by parades. At the Union Square meeting, approximately 1,000 police will maintain order.

According to the leaders of the socialist and communist parties and the industrial workers of the world, the strike will be one of sympathy only, hence there will be no picket lines or other manifestations of a labor disturbance.

Local sympathizers of the Sacco-Vanzetti cause have also been asked by the Boston group to join the "march on Boston" and stage a demonstration there. Leaders here said that more than 1,000 had declared their intentions of joining the "march." They said they would travel in buses emblazoned with signs reading: "Sacco-Vanzetti Freedom League."

Among the unions and other organizations which were said to have pledged themselves to join the protest strike were:

The International Printers' Union, ship and yard workers, clothing workers, garment workers, United Hebrew Trades, Journeymen Tailors' Union, Journeymen Barbers' Union, carpenters' and excavators' union, fur workers, plasterers' union, cement workers' union, Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, painters and decorators, laundry workers, metal workers, bricklayers union, power workers, United Textile Workers of America, Marine Transport Workers' Union, and Typographical Union, local No. 7.

Also the Anti-Fascist Alliance of North America, Young Workers' League, International Labor Defense, National Council for the Protection of the Foreign-Born, and the Workers' Health Bureau.

OLD TIME BASEBALL STAR IS MOURNED

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—New York baseball fans today mourned the passing of Billy Gilbert, old-time star of the Giants. He died at his home here at the age of fifty-two.

Gilbert played second base for the Giants when they won a pennant in 1905. The others in the infield were McGraw, Devlin and Dahlen. At the time of his death Gilbert was a scout for the New York club of the International League.

FLYERS WILL AVOID FLIGHT START 13TH

DESSAU, Germany, Aug. 9.—Because Saturday is the thirteenth day of the month, it is probable that the hop-off of the Junkers flight from Germany to America will be deferred until Monday. Trial flights were taken today. Floods of gift packages for the flyers are coming in. Correspondents were barred from the flying field today in order not to interfere with the flight preparations.

MINE RE-OPENS

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 9.—The Klein and Moore mine which ceased operations last Friday when its twenty-five employees joined the United Mine workers, resumed operations today when the operators signed a tentative agreement with T. J. Price, sub-district president. The Jacksonville wage scale is to be paid pending a permanent settlement.

Final Tribute For General Wood

QUIET ELECTION DAY EXPECTED TO FEATURE STATE-WIDE PRIMARIES BEING HELD TUESDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Primary municipal elections, involving strictly local issues of the communities in which they were being held, occupied the attention of voters in a score or more of Ohio cities, towns and villages today. There were no statewide issues at stake, and a quiet election day with a light vote being cast was forecast throughout the state.

In Columbus, candidates of the two major parties for seats on the city council were being selected, together with judges of the municipal court.

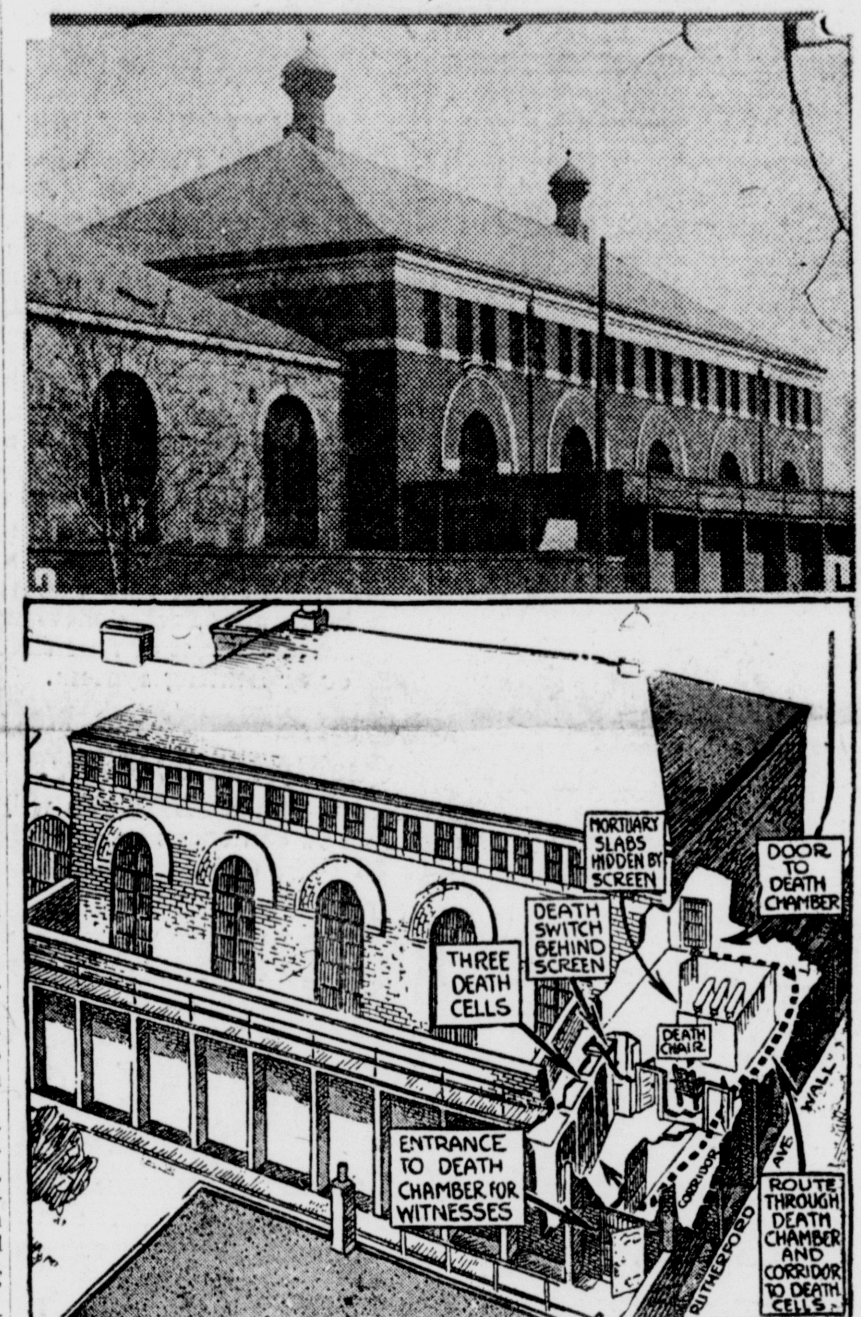

Toledo was choosing candidates for mayor, with three nominees to be chosen from a field of four.

In Canton, a touch of interest was added by the attempt of C. C. Curtis, ex-mayor who was ousted by Governor Donahay, to stage a political "comeback." He is one of five seeking nomination by the Republicans, while Mayor S. M. Swarts is opposed by J. B. Parker for the Democratic honor.

Policemen were guarding the polls in Steubenville, where Dr. E. J. C. Sander, reform mayor, who took office after John Patton was ousted last year, was opposed by a field of four, including Patton, also attempting to regain his political prestige by re-election. Claims of alleged false registration resulted in the stationing of officers at the polls to enforce the election regulations.

Akron, Mansfield, Newark, Tiffin, Lorain and Alliance were among the other cities holding primaries today.

EIGHT HAWAII-BOUND PILOTS LINE UP FOR STARTING SIGNAL

Six Other Planes On Way To Take-Off Scene—Griffin Gets "Pole" Position—Planes Leave Friday

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 9.—Eight of the fourteen racing planes entered in the $35,000 Dole flight were lined up in Oakland and San Francisco today, awaiting the starting signals at noon, Friday.

Six other planes entered in the 2,400-mile contest are either en route to the bay region today, or are preparing to take off from Mills Field and Oakland airport, starting points of the flight.

Pilots already on the ground are: Augie Pedlar, and his passenger, Mildred Doran, "Flying School Ma'am."

Maj. Livingston Irwin, Oakland, who will fly alone.

Bennett Griffin, Oklahoma City. Art Goebel, of Santa Monica, flying an Oklahoma plane.

Martin Jensen, Honolulu.

Norman A. Goddard, San Diego.

Frank Clark, Los Angeles.

Jack Frost, Los Angeles, pilot of the San Francisco Examiner plane.

Capt. Charles W. Parkhurst, of Peoria, Ill., was reported on his way westward today. The other five flyers still delinquent are completing final tests of their planes and equipment. Three flyers—Capt. James L. Griffin, Capt. V. Rogers, and George D. Covell—are in Southern California. Capt. William P. Erwin, now in Dallas, may take off for Oakland today. He will be accompanied on the flight by his wife, Connie. Mrs. Erwin and Miss Doran are the only women planning to attempt the Dole race. The final entrant, Capt. Frederick A. Giles, who is now in Detroit, may hop off for San Francisco today.

Most of the flyers selected the Oakland airport as their starting field. Only two, Irwin and Frost, have thus far favored Mills field, San Francisco. Eight picked the

KILLS POLICEMAN, WOUNDS ANOTHER

WILSON, N. C., Aug. 9.—Several hundred officers and civilians today were scouring a woody section near here for Eugene Mason, who early this morning is alleged to have shot and killed Joe Ellis, a policeman, and probably fatally wounded Luther Barnes, another officer.

The two officers were shot when they answered a call to Mason's home by his wife, Barnes, shot through the chest, said that he believed he wounded Mason with a pistol shot.

STRENGTHEN PATROL
CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 9.—The Lake Erie border patrol, maintaining a guard against liquor smuggling from Canada, will be strengthened within a few days, according to reports from the U. S. MARSHALL CHARGES PETITIONERS USED MISREPRESENTATION

Father Of Justice Of
Peace Law Defends
Attacked Bill

Commenting upon the Marshall act, a bill of his own authorship, reviving justice of the peace courts in Ohio, which was prevented from going into operation Tuesday by a referendum petition bearing signatures of 115,000 voters, filed at Columbus Monday, State Senator L. T. Marshall, this city, charged the signatures were obtained in many counties by "misrepresentation on the part of those seeking the referendum."

"Automobile clubs in some counties were induced to sponsor the referendum and many of the members of these clubs will no doubt resent the misrepresentation when they learn that this law in no way affects the jurisdiction of justices of the peace relative to violation of the traffic laws," Senator Marshall declared.

"The decision of Judge Taft and this law only relates to criminal cases in which the mayor or justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, which they never had in traffic violations," he explained.

"The officers of some of the automobile clubs lobbied against the gas tax when the majority of the members favored the law and I am wondering if after a while, the members of these clubs will not resent this misrepresentation on

MOSCOW, Aug. 9.—Trotsky and Zinovieff have been expelled from the central committee of the communist party, by an overwhelming vote of the plenum, according to reliable reports today.

No official statement has been issued on the vote as yet. The final expulsion of Trotsky and Zinovieff from the central committee the stripping of power from these two men who were once high in the communist councils.

For more than a year Trotsky and Zinovieff have been leading the opposition to the present communist policies and as their opposition has continued they have been deprived of office after office.

When the plenum of the central committee went into session last week it was reported that Joseph Stalin had given warning that all those of the opposition who failed to give a pledge of allegiance to the party and its policies would be drastically dealt with. Many deserted the opposition, but Trotsky and Zinovieff held fast and now pay the penalty of expulsion.

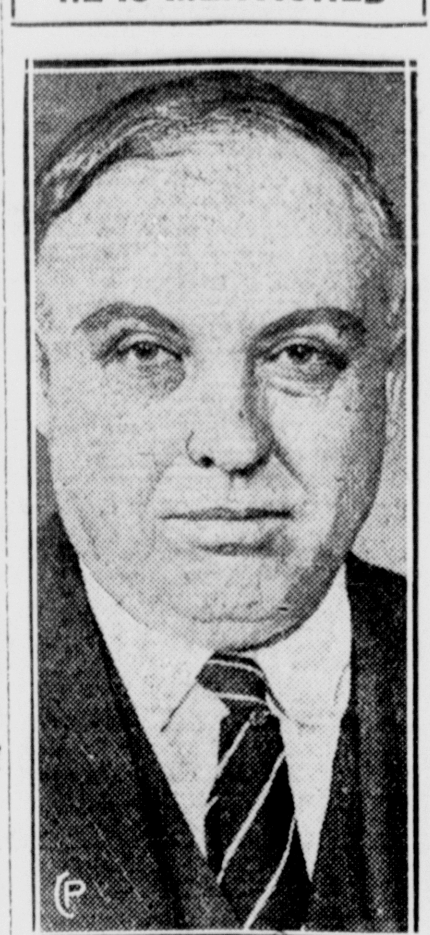

HORRORS! LINDY LETS GIRL SIT IN PLANE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 9.—The wagging of tongues which starts anew every time the Prince of Wales invites a young woman to dance or dine or ride on his yacht was but a dim echo today, compared with the gossip started by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, bashful trans-Atlantic flying hero, in the wake of his invitation to a pretty girl to sit in the cockpit of the "Spirit of St. Louis."

The honored guest, who sat in the control seat of the famous monoplane was Miss Martha Helen Croninger, 17, said to be the only woman aviator in Cincinnati. She isn't really a full-fledged pilot yet, but is a student aviator, and already has done some solo piloting. She was introduced to Lindbergh at Lunken airport just prior to his take-off for Louisville, Ky., yesterday, and Lindy surprised even his closest associates when he invited her to inspect the controls of his ship from the pilot's place.

Lindbergh's take-off was a slightly delayed when it was discovered that a souvenir hunter had whittled a four-inch square section from the stabilizer of the "Spirit of St. Louis," but repairs were made quickly.

SAY COMMUNISTS AIDED AGITATION

PEKING, Aug. 9.—Documents in the possession of the American embassy here, captured in the raids on the Soviet embassy last April, are held to contain evidence that Sacco-Vanzetti agitation in the United States has been aided by the Communist International.

Officials pointed to a report by the "department of agitation and propaganda," which bears evidence on pages 115, and 173 that the "Workers' party has conducted a propaganda campaign for a united front of activity in behalf of the relief of Sacco and Vanzetti."

HALTS JAIL BREAK

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 9.—Acting on a "tip" given him by a prisoner, Sheriff Peter J. Corli today exposed a plot by five other inmates of the county jail to saw their way to freedom. Six saws had been smuggled in, presumably by a man now out on bond, and one bar had already been cut away.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 9.—The national organization of the Norwegian Trades Unions has organized Sacco-Vanzetti protest meetings throughout all Norway, to be held at the close of work on Wednesday.

FIGHTER ACCORDED MILITARY-RITES AT FUNERAL SERVICES

Army Generals Lay Comrade To Rest In
Arlington

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Back to the scene of his greatest triumphs was borne today the body of Major General Leonard Wood, for a final resting place in Arlington National Cemetery, among the nation's warrior dead.

It was in Washington that Wood, once an obscure surgeon in the army, rose to chief of staff, the highest post in the military establishment.

The funeral which honored his forty-two years service as soldier and colonial administrator was one of the most impressive military ceremonies here in recent years. Despite overcast skies, thousands of Washingtonians paid silent tribute along the fifteen mile procession route between Union Station Plaza and the burial ground.

Ranking generals of the army officiated as pallbearers. Public officials of every rank participated in the ceremony. Flags were flown at half staff on all public buildings.

General Wood's body arrived at 7:25 o'clock this morning from Boston, where he died early Sunday morning following a cranial operation. He was 67 years old and had returned from the Philippine Islands three months ago on his first leave of absence since he assumed the governor-generalship under President Harding in 1921. Mrs. Wood and a guard of honor composed of six troopers accompanied the bier from Boston.

Upon its arrival the general's body, borne by six soldiers, was carried slowly behind two ranks of troops from the train to the president's room in the station, there to lie in state for a brief time while the funeral cortege formed outside. The casket, draped by an American flag, was not opened. The funeral escort was ordered to move at nine o'clock for the last, slow march to the cemetery. Wood's grave is among his comrades of the "Rough Riders" regiment.

Mrs. Wood, her two sons, Osborne Wood and Leonard Wood, Jr., and her daughter, Miss Louise B. Wood, sat for a short time by the casket in the president's room. None but military officers and relatives was allowed to enter with them. Mrs. Wood appeared pale and worn, but bore up well.

After the funeral, Mrs. Wood plans to go to Baltimore for a rest. Rain began to fall as the procession left the station.

The military escort of almost a thousand men, including units from Fort Myer and Fort Humphreys, Virginia, was headed by the army band and commanded by Major General Hanson E. Ely, commandant of the army war college. Behind the flag-draped caisson, a ridersless horse, with saddle turned backwards—the traditional emblem of military mourning—moved in the slow cortege.

The procession moved from the station plaza to the capital grounds, west on Pennsylvania Avenue to the Washington monument grounds past the White House and the great marble shaft of the dividers monument in the rear of the state department, and thence over the Potomac to the cemetery.

Colonel John T. Axon, chief of the chaplains of the army, and Chaplain W. H. Watts were appointed to officiate at the burial ground.

JUDGE DENIES STAY AND REVOCATION OF SENTENCE FOR PAIR

Riot Squads With Machine Guns Held In Readiness
—Defense Appeals To Borah, Lindbergh, Jané
Adams—Will Again Seek Courts

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 9.—(Bulletin)—Judge Webster Thayer today denied a motion for a stay of execution and revocation of sentence for the condemned radicals, Sacco and Vanzetti. His decision was received by special messenger from his home in Worcester and marks the latest defeat of the last minute efforts of defense counsel to save the alleged murderers.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Police redoubled their precautions today as the executioner was reported leaving Sing Sing prison for this city to test the electric chair for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti; as a general strike of Boston workers was called in a last minute protest; as trial Judge Webster Thayer's decision on a stay and revocation of sentence was enroute by messengers from his Worcester home to Dedham courthouse, and as defense lawyers held a council in preparation for a quick rush to the United States courts.

Riot squads from the twenty-one police stations were assembled at police headquarters, with three men in each squad manning sub-machine guns capable of firing 1500 bullets a minute. The riot squad of 400 and more men was ready for instant call to aid the 2,000 policemen engaged in "twenty-four hour duty" at the various stations.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—As Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti approached one day nearer their doom, developments in the world-famous case came rapidly today.

Judge Webster Thayer, who had denied the men a new trial, had penned his decision on the motions for a revocation and stay of sentence.

Police in the Roxbury district discovered a circular calling for a workers' general strike in protest against the executions of the prisoners, who are under respite until midnight Wednesday.

Telegraphic requests were sent by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee to United States Senators William E. Borah, Robert M. La Follette and Miss Jane Addams to hasten to President Coolidge at Rapid City, S. D. to wait as a delegation on the chief executive in order to lay before him "evidence in the department of justice files" of the federal government's alleged connection with the case as well as to urge him to follow President Wilson's precedent in the famous Mooney case by making a federal inquiry.

The defense committee also telegraphed Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, asking him to appeal to the president to appoint a commission of inquiry.

Washington Street tunnel was searched for a man carrying a bundle. He had fled when observed trying to enter the kiosk at State Street. Western Massachusetts police were searching for the owner of thirty-five pounds of dynamite found hidden in a "salvage" near the Pittsfield home of a late Crosby of the State Supreme Court, which body decided against a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti.

THREE DETECTIVES TRACING NEW CLEW IN SUBWAY BOMBING

Suspect Sought As Auto
Seen Near Blast
Scene

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Three detectives left police headquarters today on the trail of a suspect in the subway bomb outrages upon advices from Boston, it is believed.

Failure of a known Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizer, whose automobile was seen speeding from the scene of one of the blasts, to appear at his home in Boston, led to the belief that he is in hiding in New York.

Detective Christopher Kelley traced the identity of the man through the Massachusetts license plates on his automobile and was sent to Boston to watch for the suspect at his home. Meantime Boston police toured the city, visiting haunts of sympathizers.

Witnesses who obtained the license numbers say the machine, an expensive sedan, darted away at high speed from Twenty-eighth St. and Fourth Ave., immediately after the explosion Friday night.

The only information Police Commissioner Joseph A. Tamm would offer regarding the New York phase of bombers' hunt was that the investigation is proceeding along four lines. He refused to enlarge upon this statement.

Meantime the police department continued on duty in full strength with 14,000 men. Private guards and special police also remained at their posts. In addition to these protective measures, more than 1,000 extra guards have been notified to be ready for instant duty.

Guards were dispatched to several points in the city where it was thought greater vigilance was needed.

From the bench in Superior Court at Dedham, where he heard motions for a new trial and a revocation and stay of execution, Judge Thayer broke his silence of seven years to defend himself publicly from the charges of prejudice and unfairness. It was the first opportunity he had to speak, he said, as the only way a judge can speak publicly is from the bench. "I have always insisted that every defendant, whatever his race or religion, whether he was conservative or radical, native born or alien, is always entitled to a fair trial," he said.

With reference to the question of prejudice he said: "There is not now and never was at any time," he noted exceptions, "but said he was saving all the rights both of appeal and exceptions belonging to the defense."

The court has no jurisdiction the exceptions will be of no avail. Judge Thayer consulted precedent at length while writing his decision during the night.

While the judge's decision was being given out at Dedham and while developments were coming thick and fast elsewhere, police were establishing a "deadline" about state's prison in Charlestown and Sacco was entering the twenty-fourth day of his hunger strike.

IRISH LABOR PARTY PROTESTS ACTION

DUBLIN, Aug. 9.—The Irish Labor party and the Irish Trade Union congress today sent a cablegram to President Coolidge asking executive clemency in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti. The message follows:

"Irish labor joins in other countries urging clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti."

The Workers' Party of Ireland adopted a resolution protesting against the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences.

THREE UNHURT WHEN AUTO LEAVES PIKE

Three occupants of a touring car escaped with minor scratches and bruises when the auto skidded on the wet surface of the Jamestown Pike four miles east of Xenia, left the road and overturned at the foot of a twelve-foot embankment at 12 o'clock Sunday night.

The machine was being driven toward Xenia by Stanley Nichols, Wilmington Pike, owner of the car, and was also occupied by Marion Canaday, Hill St., and Ray G. McCoy, Home Ave. The trio escaped serious injury although the auto was damaged.

The machine was taken to The Xenia Garage Co. for repairs. The driver lost control of the machine in rounding a sharp curve in the pike, the machine skidding to the left side and dropping over the embankment.

DRIVER TO BOSS IS RECORD OF NEW U. S. STEEL COAL EXECUTIVE

AT NINETEEN
HE WAS
EARNING $1.76
A DAY

MARRIED WHEN HE WAS 27 AND
MAKING $3 A DAY

MANY TIMES I WOULD BECOME DEQUICKED AND THROUGH THE LESSONS ASIDE

THOMAS MOSES, WITH SKETCHES OF EVENTS IN HIS LIFE.

By JAMES F. McKENNA
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to the Gazette.

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 9.—To a coal mine mule driver has just been awarded the biggest coal mining job in the world.

The formal announcement says that Thomas Moses has been elected president of the coal mining interests of the United States Steel corporation, with headquarters in Pittsburgh. But there's more to it than just that.

At 19 Tom Moses, mule driver, was earning $1.76 a day at the Mike Kelly mine near Westville, Ill. He was the chief support, then, of a widowed stepmother.

At 27, when he married, he was making $3 a day. He installed his bride in a three-room miners' cottage, at a rental of $6 a month.

It was here that his ambition really was born. Why was it that some men occupied positions of great responsibility and were able to provide luxurious homes for their loved ones? Tom Moses and his bride talked it over, often, around the coal oil lamp on winter evenings.

One thing was certain: he had to have an education and he had to know all about his work. He began, daily, after ten hours in the mine, he came home to the simple lessons familiar to every small child of school age today.

"Many, many times," he muses today, "I would become disgusted and throw the lessons aside. But I always came back to them. My wife saw to that."

Sticks It Out
His fellow workmen used to make fun of him—studying as if he were a schoolboy. But Tom Moses stuck.

"My greatest trouble," he confesses, "was in trying to absorb too much education at once. I wanted to learn it all the first winter."

Then a school teacher who knew of his ambition showed him a pile of brick and pointed out how futile it would be to try to carry them all at once, but how rapidly the pile dwindled if he carried a few at a time and kept it up.

He took up arithmetic. That mastered, he appealed to another teacher to help him in odd hours with his algebra. He paid, for this tutoring, 15 cents an hour. He raked and he scraped to meet expenses and keep up his lessons.

Takes Mining Course, Too
He took a correspondence school course in general mining. But he remained a coal digger until, in 1905, his loyalty and his hitherto unrecognized accomplishments, suddenly won for him a place as secretary of the state mining board of Illinois. Next he became a state mine inspector for the district, including Danville.

"I could have made more money in the mines," he recalls, "but I wanted to learn."

In 1910 Tom Moses resigned his state job to become superintendent of the Bunsen Coal Company's mine, near Westville, scene of his earlier toiling. The Bunsen Coal Company was a subsidiary of the U. S. Steel corporation. In 1914 he became general superintendent of all the Bunsen properties. The name was changed to the United States Fuel Company.

In that capacity he continued until now, with offices in Danville. He has just gone to Pittsburgh to fill the vacancy left by the death of the president of all the United States Steel mining properties.

Tom Moses came home from Pittsburgh the day after his election was announced. At the Danville station a crowd of 200 old friends—miners most of them—greeted him. To them Tom Moses, in his shirt sleeves, smoking an old briar pipe over a shining desk in a luxurious office, was as close as the least of their brethren. They felt free always to tell him their troubles. They felt free now to show him they were proud of his greatest step of all.

PRESENTING

The New Queen Anne
Home Heater

BEAUTIFULLY grained and finished in brown mahogany, the Queen Anne Home Heater resembles a handsome piece of period furniture. The fact that it is an above-the-floor furnace—with the capacity to heat 20% to 100% more space than other heaters—is cleverly concealed. Your home is beautified by its presence.

It operates by the same principle as does a basement furnace. It has a furnace size grate, a furnace size firepot, a furnace size combustion dome, a furnace size water pan, a furnace size ashpit, furnace size doors, etc. It holds its fire overnight like a furnace. It is of actual furnace construction, it's heavier built—tightly jointed, leak and gas tight. It economically burns any fuel, delivering more heat from the same amount of fuel than does any other heater or heating system.

BOMB EXPLODED IN LONDON SUBWAY BUT DAMAGE WAS SLIGHT

LONDON, Aug. 9.—A bomb was exploded in the Aldwych station, the London Tube (subway) today. According to the first reports there were five or six explosions. The underground railways, after an investigation, issued the following statement:

"A small tin containing some explosive material exploded in the lavatory of the Aldwych tube station at 10 o'clock. No damage was done and no one was injured. It is believed to have been the work of a practical joker."

Despite the nature of the company's statement, detectives from Scotland Yard and explosive experts took charge of the fragments of the bomb and began an effort to trace the perpetrators. The station was searched for other bombs.

The explosions took place during the morning rush hour but there was no damage and no one was injured.

Porters in the Aldwych station declare that the force of the explosion shook the building and made a deep crack in one of the walls.

Two men were observed to come from the cloakroom just prior to the explosion, making their exit to the street by the stairs rather than by the elevators which are ordinarily used.

The Aldwych station is probably one of the least used underground stations in London as it is not on a main line, but it is a station on a connecting loop. It is located on the Strand almost opposite Bush House, the huge American office building, and is near Australia House and the air ministry. A tunnel runs under the Strand to the Aldwych station and if the bombing was intended as a serious attack it may have been the plan of the perpetrators to blow up this tunnel, which would have tied up traffic on the Strand and Kingsway two of the most important traffic outlets from the city of London.

ENGINEERS SELECT SITE FOR HATCHERY

Chief Engineer F. A. Farley is expected to visit the Bryan Farm either Wednesday or Thursday to inspect the location, and if it meets with his approval preliminary work connected with establishing a hatchery at that point will be commenced immediately, it is announced.

The petitioner claims the machine was given a fair trial but was found to be worthless and shipped back June 1, 1926. Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

LIGHT VOTE PREDICTED WHILE CITY PICKS FOUR NOMINEES

An exceptionally light vote was being recorded at Xenia's municipal primary election Tuesday.

After a tour of polling places at noon, R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the election board, estimated that not more than 300 votes were cast during the morning, and predicted the total vote will not exceed 700, as compared with previous estimates of nearly 1,500.

Women were doing a fair share of the voting and the feminine vote was expected to be greater in the afternoon when most housewives found it more convenient to visit the polls.

Xenia voters had twelve hours Tuesday in which to make their choices for nominations for City Commission, the only issue before the primary.

With two vacancies to be created December 31 with expiration of the terms of C. A. Kelbie and Dr. C. G. McPherson, Xenia citizens were called upon Tuesday to nominate four men from a field of eight candidates.

Four candidates will be eliminated by the primary and the four survivors receiving the highest number of votes, will run at the November election, when voters will select two from the number to fill the two commission vacancies.

Polls opened at 5:30 a. m. Tuesday and will close at 5:30 p. m. Returns from the election are expected to be complete within an hour afterward, due to few names and the light vote.

All voters presenting themselves at the polls Tuesday were given a ballot on which appeared the names of the eight commission candidates, lacking in any party designation.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

HUNTS TRI-COLORED TOM CAT 40 YEARS; CAN'T FIND BUYER

W. I. WHEATON AND HIS TRI-COLORED TOMCAT, WHICH OUGHT TO BE WORTH $10,000—TO SOMEBODY.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 9.—Sympathy is sought for W. I. Wheaton who spent forty years of his life looking for a cat, found it, and now doesn't know what to do with it.

Phineas T. Barnum, circus man, practical joker, and exploiter of freaks of all sorts, was in his heyday when Wheaton's search began. Barnum, as the story is related to Wheaton, wanted to buy, for $10,000 cash, a cat, of the male sex, with three distinct and different colors marked in its fur. The colors could be black, white and yellow, blue, pink and green, gray, purple and scarlet, or any other combination. That didn't matter. The important thing was that the cat must be a tom. No tabbies could qualify.

The catch is that while there are plenty of tri-colored tabbies roaming the alleys of the universe, three-way pigmented toms are as rare as gold teeth in a hen's mouth.

Began Search at Ten

Wheaton was ten years old when the tale of Mr. Barnum's $10,000 offer was first relayed to his eager ears. He made up his mind to find that cat. Following his ambition he took up the sea as a profession. Now he is first engineer on a steamship. He gets around. In Singapore and Sidney, in London and Liverpool, in Montreal and Melbourne, east and west, and north and south, W. I. Wheaton hunted the highways and the byways seeking one cat, tom, tri-colored.

He found what he wanted. A variegated feline crawled on board his ship in New York harbor one evening, wobegone, bedraggled—and female. Wheaton adopted the animal. A few weeks later she presented him with a litter of six kittens—and one of them was not

Rain intervened to cause postponement of a scheduled double-header between the Junior Business Men and Kiwanis Club in the Class A division of the Xenia Playground League Monday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. An inspection of the field revealed plenty of water but an absence of much field.

Two games were to have been played, one a regularly scheduled game and the second a postponed contest.

Butchers will meet the Firemen in a Class B game Tuesday night providing the ground is in shape.

FURNISHES BOND

Upon entering into a bond of $405.90 to the state of Ohio, with C. W. Hoffman and O. J. Barnett as sureties, Charles Forsythe, who recently pleaded guilty before Probate Judge S. C. Wright to a charge of possessing liquor, was discharged from custody.

Forsythe was admitted to bond, conditional that he pay a fine of $400 and costs taxed at $5.90, as assessed by Judge Wright, on or before Thursday, November 3, 1927.

BALLANTYNE TAKES COLLEGE POSITION

John Ballantyne, N. Detroit St., has been released from the superintendency of Beavercreek Twp. schools to accept the position of assistant professor in the oratory department of Muskingum College, New Concord, O.

HALL OF FAME

Nominating Sylvester Johnson.

Because he is one of the hundreds of pitchers who failed to make good with the Detroit Tigers.

Because he drew considerable attention several years ago when the Tigers paid some $40,000 for him and Herman Pilleto—Portland hurling stars.

Because he flirted with fame on various occasions but found her plenty fickle.

Because he drifted to the minors a couple of years ago—determined to hurl his way back to the big show.

And because he announced his intention of returning very shortly by hurling a no-hit, no-run game for Syracuse the other day against Buffalo. Only 29 men faced Buffalo. Only twenty-nine men faced him and but two reached first.

No. 1 is a Yale blue toque with coronet of bias folds of harmonizing Canton and Gobel blue velvet folded and crossed and stitched into flat folds in the back. No. 3 uses a crossbar incrustation of Sistine velvet on pale rose. No. 5 is a tailored cloche in claret red velvet with a panel of raspberry. No. 4 displays a checkerboard design of brown and beige grosgrain ribbon on a brimless dark beige velvet from Alex.

COUNTY BONDED DEBT REDUCED DURING YEAR--REPORT PROVES

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, a gross reduction of $79,392.69 was brought about in Greene County's actual bonded indebtedness, exclusive of the individual debts of the various taxing districts, including the city of Xenia, villages and townships, and city and county schools.

This is revealed in the annual report of County Auditor R. O. Wead, disclosing the outstanding county debt June 30, 1926 of $500,192.69, was reduced $79,392.69 to $420,800. Deducting $176,086 in the hands of the interest and sinking fund trustees, the total debt stands at $244,714.

County road indebtedness was reduced $45,142.69 to $260,800 and $6,000 in bonds was redeemed on bridges and culverts leaving a debt of $43,000.

The debt on the Court House and County Jail is $11,000, as $5,000 was wiped out during the past twelve months. The debt on the Children's Home and Infirmary remained stationary at $22,600. The special assessment road debt of $550 was wiped off and the deficiency relief acts debt, was reduced $22,700 to a mark of $83,400.

Road debt of the various townships is now $7,000 compared with $13,000 a year ago. A reduction of $11,957.51 was made in the total debt of city schools, the liability now being $637,700.

The total county school debt is $488,221.60, according to the report, as new bond issues of $7,444.51 did not offset a reduction of $29,449.51 during the year. The outstanding debt a year ago was $510,226.60.

The report does not include Xenia city's indebtedness nor that of the various villages. Figures on the village debt are not available because of delay in obtaining a report from Osborn.

SENATOR NORRIS IS WHISPERED THIRD-PARTY CANDIDATE

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Xenia Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—In a whisper about as loud as the one which hinted at the third party presidential candidacy of the late Senator Robert M. LaFollette, around four years ago just now, little birds are mentioning the name of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, in the same connection, today.

That the movement will develop even as formidably as in 1924—and it didn't give very satisfactory results then—it's entirely too soon to predict.

Nevertheless, it's evident that the third party idea isn't entirely dead, as it appeared to be for awhile. Possibly it's been growing, on the q. t. We can tell more about that when it comes out and shows itself, if that's what it's getting ready to do.

The history of third parties in this country hasn't been such as to justify any particularly brilliant hopes for a new one's future, when it makes its appearance, but if what's going on is really part of the process of the realignment of the old parties, it may be a different thing.

That the regular Republican and Democratic labels don't mean anything any longer has been too often remarked to require repetition. Politicians deny it, of course, but they know as well as anybody else that it's true.

A conservative Republican is almost exactly the same thing as a conservative Democrat. He bears not the faintest resemblance to a liberal Republican. A liberal Republican can't be told from a liberal Democrat, under a powerful microscope, but a liberal Democrat can be told from a conservative Democrat with the naked eye as far off as they can be seen.

Naturally, in all decency, there ought to be a new deal, so that a conservative voter can vote for a conservative candidate, and a liberal can vote for a liberal one, instead of voting, the conservative for a liberal and the liberal for a conservative, as like as not, due to confusion caused by meaningless party emblems.

If this thing's merely a temporary sectional manifestation, it probably won't accomplish much. If the so-called third party tendency is, in fact, an attempt on the liberals' part to flock by themselves, leaving the conservatives by themselves, too, it deserves encouragement from both sides.

In most respects the country can be divided into two fairly definite groups—that is generally speaking, neither group has any serious divergences of opinion within itself. Unfortunately this isn't true of prohibition.

Prohibition cuts crossways of everything. It's a subject concerning which Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, all are split.

How this issue's ever going to be classified, the Lord only knows.

The Progressives' 1924 campaign, as previously remarked, was a good deal of a frost, but possibly it failed to do itself justice, from lack of leadership.

Senator LaFollette was a sick man. He wasn't present at his own nominating convention, which ran itself—none too enthusiastically. In the actual fight his followers swore by him, but he wasn't in sight, to cheer them on.

Uncle George Norris has plenty of pep.

He's getting old but he's mighty hard boiled.

Right off hand, it's difficult to think of anybody better adapted to wading into the very forefront of the worst kind of a cut-and-thrust scrap.

This whispering may be destined to swell yet into a sure-enough blood-thirsty yell.

Six 25c tubes in each $1.00 package at leading drug stores.

By MILDRED W. SANDOE

New York's playhouses are dark this month—many of them—but the plays that appealed to Broadway last year and those that are still attracting their hundreds each night can be yours right here in Xenia. A really comfortable chair, a good light, the right mood and a reading version of the play will furnish you with at least two-thirds the enjoyment that the produced play would give you. Here are some that might appeal.

In this drama, Don Marquis has achieved a serious play of high rank and great poetic beauty. A thousand years ago a stranger went to Cornwall and fell in love with the beautiful wife of the Cornish king. Their story lives today in the guise of an immortal legend.

Today a young American poet visiting in Cornwall, falls in love with the wife of his host's neighbor. Their love story seems to bring to life the characters of the old legend. The superstitions of the country side lend strength to the eerie feeling that creeps over the poet and makes him believe that his beloved is one of those from the sunken land of Lyonesse, and that the ghostly hemstitcher are playing their part in the drama of his life. This is a modern play with modern characters but they are surrounded by a sad, old world atmosphere which greatly brightens the sense of tragedy and doom.

produced at once to questionable fame, exults in her temporary prominence and remains thoroughly and stupidly unregenerate to the end of the play. Her trial is especially dramatic. If we are to believe Miss Watkins, Chicago is as uncivilized as some other parts of Illinois—Herrin for instance.

CHILD UNABLE TO CONSENT TO BEING KIDNAPED IS RULE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—A child of tender years is incapable of consenting to its own abduction

and, when, taken from its rightful guardian it must be deemed to have been taken without its consent, as a matter of law. This is the ruling given by Attorney General Edward C. Turner and Prosecuting Attorney John K. Sawyers, Woodsfield.

In determining the meaning of the word "kidnap" as used in Ohio law, consideration must be given to the common definition of "kidnapping" which is defined as a false imprisonment, aggravated by conveying the imprisoned person to some other place, Turner said.

Where a child, over twenty-three years of age, is taken to another state, with the consent of such child but without the consent of the parents with whom such child was residing, the question whether such child is legally capable of giving such consent, is one of fact to be determined by a jury, under proper instruction by the court, from all the facts and circumstances as shown by the evidence, including the relation of the parents, the child's age, its development, actual capacity, state of mind, etc., Turner held.

Leading Citizen

Mrs. Ethel Baker Mayo's combined activities as postmistress, town carpenter, artist, choir singer and mother entitles her to the rank of leading citizen in Orleans, Mass.

Mother of Four Holds Four Posts

ORLEANS, Mass. (U-N Special).—Even the men of Orleans, proud village in historic Barnstable County, are willing to admit that Mrs. Ethel Baker Mayo deserves the rank of leading citizen.

Mrs. Baker is not only postmistress of Orleans' 1,100 population, but also is carpenter and choir singer.

With all of her vocations and avocations she nevertheless finds plenty of time to maintain her home and mother a flock of four children.

"A real model of Cape Cod capability," is the characterization used by proud townspeople.

By offering helpful suggestions and excellent service we are constantly working to improve everything that service is supposed to mean.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

CLOSE-UP OF AN ARTIST

Grace G. Drayton is one of the most interesting women I've met lately. She is the woman who draws the cunning kids. Her work is familiar to everybody who reads magazines, for you can't miss her handwork in connection with a well-known brand of soap. Even if you do skip that page in all the magazines, you'll find Grace Drayton's Dolly Dingle pictures and paper dolls in the most attractive pages for children.

I haven't the slightest idea how old this talented artist is. Although her hair is white, you might easily suppose that it was always that way. There's not a worry line or an age-telling line in her face or figure. And I was really incredulous when she told me that it is twenty-seven years since her pretty little girls first appeared in print.

There is to be an exhibit of Mrs. Drayton's art in London this fall. It will be a remarkable exhibit if it is as good as the walls of her studio in East Fifty-second St.

There must be fifty beautiful water-colors, of all sizes and shapes in Mrs. Drayton's highly individualistic style, on these walls. In the other rooms of her home, Dolly Dingle is also in evidence. There is even a wonderfully lifelike panel of the famous little mischief, in water colors, emerging from the bath. And this one, appropriately enough is on the bathroom wall.

Dolly Dingle is now going into the movies, in animated cartoons. The artist told me. And so careful is the creator of Dolly to preserve the personality of her child, that Mrs. Drayton goes over most of the work of the animators with her own hands, curving the lines exactly right and putting the inimitable expression of innocent naughtiness into the eyes.

"Dolly Dingle is naughty, of course," Mrs. Drayton told me, "but she is never destructive or evil. All children are naughty at times. If they were not, they would not be lovable. We love them for their naughtiness as well as for their goodness. And that's partly because their naughtiness is charming, and not at all sinful."

It is worth noting that Dolly Dingle inherits her most charming facial expressions from her creator.

RECORD PRODUCTION OF MILK ATTAINED BY TWO PRIZE COWS

BROWNIE, THE MAINE VETERAN, IS IN THE UPPER PICTURE. THE LOWER ONE SHOWS LION'S LILAC, THE SENSATIONAL OREGON YEARLING.

CAMDEN, Me., Aug. 9.—Dairymen everywhere are interested in the contrasting records of two unusual cows, offering entirely different examples of bovine breeding, both of which have just completed tests which show them to be unusual milk producers.

The unusual circumstances come from the fact that one of the animals in question is a thoroughbred, while the other has no pedigree whatever.

Brownie, an eight-year-old cow of the Ayrshire strain, owned by Ralph Cripps, of Camden, is one of the animals in question. The other is Lion's Lilac, a purebred Jersey registered with the Jersey Association of America, and bred according to the highest standards of that organization. She's in Oregon.

Lion's Lilac has just completed a 305 day test, which was begun when the animal was but one year and nine months old. In this time the yearling gave 10,752 pounds of milk, and 742.44 pounds of butterfat.

Record for Yearlings
Lilac's best month was the tenth of the test, during which period she produced eighty-two pounds of butterfat. Over the entire test, her milk averaged 6.91 per cent butterfat. Lion's Lilac is the property of Harry D. Hilt, of Independence, Ore., who bred and tested her.

Brownie is in a different category altogether. Without social standing in the bovine world, and with no pedigree worth mentioning she set the unusual record over a 365 day test of 20,140 pounds of milk. The test was watched by inspectors of the agricultural department and properly certified.

Her owner kept a careful account of her earnings, and reports that she produced milk which sold for $1.15, and turned in a net profit for the year of $946.

OLD SOL SENDS OUT HIS MESSENGERS

Once upon a time there was a little boy called Peter who used to play out-of-doors all day long making friends with the tiny folk of the field and forest. Peter was a very unusual little boy, for he possessed the magic power of speech with all the flowers, and birds and insects. Peter was given this wonderful gift by The Old Oak Tree, whose life he once saved.

One day Peter was talking with

He called all his sunbeams and sent them sliding down to earth to his friend Hop Toad when he heard the sun complaining that he felt sad.

Old Sol didn't feel as jolly as he should have, and he didn't quite know what was the matter. It wasn't that he was thinking much about himself—oh, dear, no; he didn't have time for that! He was usually too busy with his day's work. Now, however, he rested a moment from his labors—and looked below him.

"Everything's as it should be," said he. "The grass is coming along as well as can be expected! The early trees are all out! Going to be a fine wheat season—" never saw fields so green as those over yonder that there wasn't a splendid harvest! Every flake of snow has disappeared and there'll be no more falls this season—I shall see to that!

"The birds are coming home and singing as merrily as ever. The feathered rascals started in as soon as I woke them up this morning!"

"Frogs began their piping before I went to sleep last night! 'Down in the swamps the Red Wings are playing tag among the Pussy Willows!'

"The Crows are holding a council in the cornfield. Wise old thieves! I know what that means—they have discovered a lot of fresh plowed earth, and they are making plans to follow the furrows and pick up the grubs and the insects that the plow turns up! And when the planting comes—let the farmer watch out for his seed or the black rogues will gobble it all up, and not a thing will sprout but weeds!"

Old Sol covered his face for a moment to think, and down below on earth everybody thought it was going to rain. Old Sol had a bright idea. He chuckled, and away floated the cloud with which he had veiled his smile and down on earth the sun shone more brightly than before.

"I know what is wrong with the world," cried Old Sol. "It is spring and I am lonely. I long for the sight of gay flowers. I want to hear the busy buzzing of the bees. And it is all my own fault. I have not shone brightly enough to bring out my little friends. It has been so cold that they have not dared to venture forth from their shelter. They have been waiting for my warmth and I have not given it to them. I am ashamed of myself!"

Old Sol stopped thinking and went to work. He called all his sunbeams together and sent them sliding down to earth on his slanting rays. And every little sunbeam had a message that it carried straight to a bud.

the part of certain of the officers and begin to investigate the motive of these leaders.

"Some signatures to the referendum were secured on the representation that this law would be a burden on the tax payers. Nothing could be further from the truth.

"This bill provides no salary, but requires the justice or mayor to tax and collect the fees from the judgment debtor. In other words, if the defendant is acquitted, a justice, mayor or constable, collecting his legal fee from the county, limiting however, the amount to $250 in any one month including both convictions and acquittals. Any excess of fees collected over the $250 is profit to the county and in many instances this will be the result. And, of course, when fines are taken, into consideration as well as fees the bill cannot but be profitable to the county rather than an expense to the tax payer.

"On the other hand the tax payers should know that the secretary of state has estimated the cost of this referendum to be $150,000. The tax payers are asked to put up this amount for the bootlegger.

"The whole purpose of the bill is to eliminate any temptation on the part of the justice of peace or the mayor to convict the defendant in order to get his fees and to eliminate any and all so-called commercialized courts by limiting their compensation to $250 per month.

"The bill was introduced in the Ohio Senate long before the decision of Judge Taft with which decision we are in full accord.

"However, if this bill is defeated, justices of peace and mayors cannot set in the trial of any offenses in which they heretofore have had final jurisdiction. The people of Ohio, who are in favor of law enforcement, will favor this law.

"The organized wet interests who are objecting to law enforcement, are back of the referendum seeking to defeat the law.

"It is unfortunate that a few of the leaders of the automobile clubs of Ohio, who are opposed to the enforcement of the prohibition laws, are misleading or attempting to mislead their memberships.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILLE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for grocer Mr. PEEVEY afterwards.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Mille as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her expensive presents, lending her his car, etc. But Mille confesses that while she likes Nye, and that she more than likes his money and position, she really prefers DAVEY DAVIDSON, a salesman whom she knew in a former place of business. She says she intends to get Davidson a position in Nye's office.

Beau and Mille give so little towards the support of the flat that Sally often borrows from her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME. Aunt Emily is going to turn her country house into a seaside inn, and wants Sally to go into business with her. But Sally, always in need of money, is afraid to risk it.

Beau gets $110 from Ted Sloan by means of two bad checks. Sally borrows the money to pay him back from Mr. Peevey. But instead of paying his debt, Beau uses the money to elope with MABEL WILSON, MOT, and Sally begins paying both Ted and Mr. Peevey at the rate of $4 a week. A check for $200 comes from Mr. Jerome and Mrs. Jerome gives it to Beau and Mabel for a wedding gift. Sally hopes Beau will pay his debt, but he and Mabel buy a second-hand car.

Mille goes to the hospital for an appendicitis operation. During her illness Sally does as much of her work as she can in an effort to partly earn her salary. One Saturday noon John Nye gives her an additional check for herself and she tears it up and rushes away from the office in tears, feeling humiliated, somehow, because he knows how much she needs money.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XXII

ALL that long Sunday following her outburst in John Nye's office Sally tried to make up her mind whether to go back to work for him on Monday or not.

"I've made such a fool of myself that I'm ashamed to look him in the face," she thought miserably, as she cooked dinner for her mother and Beau and Mabel.

No matter how empty the family purse might be, Mrs. Jerome insisted upon having a roast, two vegetables and a dessert for Sunday dinner. She looked forward to that dinner as a child might look forward to Thanksgiving or Christmas.

"What are your plans for the day?" she asked Beau and Mabel as they all sat at the table, having the stuffed veal and the squash and scalloped tomatoes that Sally had got ready for them.

"We thought we'd take a ride out into the country," answered Mabel, who seemed to make all the plans for the pair. "We thought maybe we could buy some grape-juice cheap along the road and put it away for wild parties."

Mrs. Jerome's whole face stiffened at the mention of the "wild" parties. But she said nothing about them.

"Perhaps you'll drop me off at the hospital on your way," she sniffed. "I'm going to take some of this veal and dressing to poor Mille. The nurse says she can't eat enough to keep a bird alive. And all at once her face crumpled up and she began to whimper.

At the familiar sound Sally came running from the kitchen, where she had been cutting the peach cobbler that she had made for dessert.

"What's wrong, Mother?" she asked, looking from Beau's blank face to Mabel's scornful one. She wondered if either of them had said anything to hurt her mother's tender feelings.

"She's crying about Mille—because she won't eat," snapped Mabel. "My goodness, I just wish I could stop eating. Maybe I'd lose a hip or two!"

Sally put her arms around her mother. "There's nothing to cry about, dear," she said, smoothing back her mother's graying hair and holding her face against her shoulder. "Mille's been through a dreadful operation, and it's going to take time for her to feel herself again. She'll be all right, you'll see."

"She's so white and so thin," sobbed Mrs. Jerome. "And she doesn't seem to have any life in her. Oh, I don't know what to do about her, I'm sure."

"Mother," Sally said, "do you see that begonia plant over on the window sill?"

Mrs. Jerome lifted her head and gave her a startled look. "Of course, I see it," she answered, plainly puzzled. "What about it?"

Sally laughed cheerfully—much more cheerfully than her feelings warranted.

"Well, just this," she said. "That plant was just a begonia, but a stalk a while ago, and it was so white and sickly that I thought it never would live. And look at it! Doesn't it make you think of Mille? All pink and pretty. Please don't worry about her, Mother. I know she'll be all right. I just feel that she will be."

Mabel burst out laughing. "Girl," she said with a sneer. "You're wasting your talents working around of-

"Well, I thought I'd take a chance," he said.

fees. You ought to turn into a woman preacher or something. . . . Well, come on, Muggsy, if you're going with us you'd better dry those tears and get your hat on."

For some reason best known to herself Mabel had taken to calling Mrs. Jerome "Muggsy." Every time she did, Mrs. Jerome frowned and winced, but that did not bother Mabel.

At 4 o'clock, while Sally was ironing her white blouse, Ted Sloan came running up the back stairs, taking them two steps at a time and making a great noise.

"Gosh, it's a pip of a day! Want to go for a ride in 'Cheapsides'?" he asked. That was what he called his car—"Old Cheapsides."

Sally smiled up at him as she straightened the collar of the waist before her on the board.

"I'd love to go. But you'll have to wait until I finish this blouse," she said. "And then we'll have to stop at the hospital for mother and bring her home. After that we can go."

He did not look particularly pleased. But he said "All right" and went down stairs much more slowly than he had come up.

When they got to the hospital an hour later Beau's little red car stood in the street before it. Ted, who knew a thing or two about second-hand cars, hooted when Sally showed it to him.

"It isn't worth a hundred dollars," he declared. "And I'm going up with you to Mille's room and tell him so." But he did very little talking after he stepped into the green-walled hospital room. For the family was just getting ready to go, and Mille was sitting up in bed, watching them listlessly as she rubbed her nails with mother-of-pearl nail polish until they were like little mirrors. On the tiny glass-topped table beside her was the plate of food that her mother had brought to her. It was untouched.

"Don't bother to come in and see me, Ted," she said when she saw his red head above Sally's dark one. "But I want to talk to you, Sally." She was like Du Barry receiving her ministers in her bed-chamber, ordering this one here and that one there.

Sally stood beside her.

"How do you feel today? Better?" "Rotten," replied Mille, almost as if she were glad to be feeling badly.

"My pep's all gone," she went on, dully. "I don't know what's the matter with me. I guess maybe the old hospital gives me the blues. How can I eat in a place like this, with people going past the door on stretchers?"

She broke off, gave Sally an intent look, and then held out a slip of paper. A telephone number was written upon it.

"That's Davy Davidson's number. Tell him I want to see him, will you?"

Sally put the paper into her shabby, gray leather purse.

"Yes, but ought you to see him when you won't see Mr. Nye?" she asked, her eyes passing over fresh-cut roses and shaggy white chrysanthemums that stood on the window sills and the dresser. She knew that John Nye had sent them.

"That's some more of my business!" Mille held out her hand for the paper. "Give me back that telephone number. I'll have the nurse give him my message."

But Sally put the bag behind her back. "No, I'll call him. But it does look funny, refusing to see the man you've made up your mind to marry and then asking another man to come. I think Mother or someone in the family ought to be here when he does come, too."

"If you say another word I'll get right out of this bed!" Mille threat-

The Theatre

Not so very many years ago, when the first motion picture fans were sitting in drab little shacks hastily put up for the showing of films, usually consisting of scenes of royalty, a parade, a train pulling in at full speed, or perhaps a balloon ascension, little did they realize that they were observing the beginning of one of the most important factors in entertainment within a few years.

And what pictures there were then! It seemed as if they had flickered, jumped and finally disappeared, leaving the audience in complete darkness!

Then, suddenly following restless sliding back and forth, the scene would settle down on the screen upside down.

Few persons believed then that within comparatively few years virtual palaces would be constructed, showing pictures that cost thousands and even millions of dollars. All of which leads up to the remark that some of the first film companies maintain a complete record of pictures made from the very beginning. This gives an excellent record of the gradual development of screen art and its scientific development. In addition, pictures from all over the world are filmed. Especially treasured are scenes taken during the World War and other historical events.

One can easily see the great importance of such records in the ages to come.

Hope Hampton has returned from Europe, where she completed "Springtime of Love," a film done entirely in technicolor. The picture is based on the Dumas novel, "Marrage of Convenience."

Pauline Garon, film star, and her actor husband, Lowell Sherman, infirmed reports that they are living apart but each refuses to discuss the nature of their difficulties. They were married a little more than a year ago.

In former days Lubitsch and Pola Negri were a great artistic combination. Some of the best Pola Negri pictures came from Lubitsch's direction. Now that he is back in the Paramount fold there is considerable speculation as to what he will do. It is probable that he will direct Pola Negri in "The Life of Rachel," a character portrayal based on the life of the French actress.
